Nixon Hospitalized Again With Phlebitis Flare-Up

LONG BEACH, Calif. (UPI) — A flare-up of Richard Nixon's phlebitis condition has filled his left leg with circulation blockages, sending the former president limping back to a hospital. His doctor warns surgery may be needed.

Nixon's physician, Dr. John Lungren, unexpectedly ordered Nixon rehospitalized Wednesday night. He revealed the implementing of tests, previously called dangerous, which were to be used only if the disease had become more serious.

The ailment, which keeps Nixon off the witness stand at the Watergate coverup trial, proved too strong for the drugs Nixon was taking at home in San Clemente, Lungren said.

The main danger facing Nixon is that the phlebitis—a disorder of veins in his left leg—will cause blood clots. If the clots come adrift in his bloodstream, they can lodge in vessels feeding vital heart muscles and lung tissue, blocking circulation and causing death.

Nixon appeared at Long Beach Memorial Hospital Medical Center shortly after 6 p.m. PDT Wednesday, apparently to the surprise of the hospital staff, which said he was not expected. Nixon was released from the hospital Oct. 4, after 11 days treatment.

He came by car from his estate at San Clemente, about 60 miles to the south, accompanied by former White House aide Stephen Bull, and walked through a rear service entrance, limping noticeably, a hospital spokesman said.

Lungren, in a statement distributed to newsmen, said a subsequent examination discovered "defects, or blockages of blood vessels"—which could be caused by clots or other factors—in the surface and interior veins of Nixon's left calf. There is "near total occlusion, or blockage of blood flow, in the deep (vein) system of the thigh," the physician said.

Tests have shown that the drugs Nixon has been taking are not keeping his blood thinned enough to prevent clotting, Lungren said.

"This inadequacy of oral anticoagulation has been a concern," he said.

Nixon was placed back on intravenous drugs in the hospital, Lungren said, but if that does not work "the possibility of surgical intervention must be considered."

The extensive clotting in Nixon's leg was discovered Wednesday night by a "venogram."

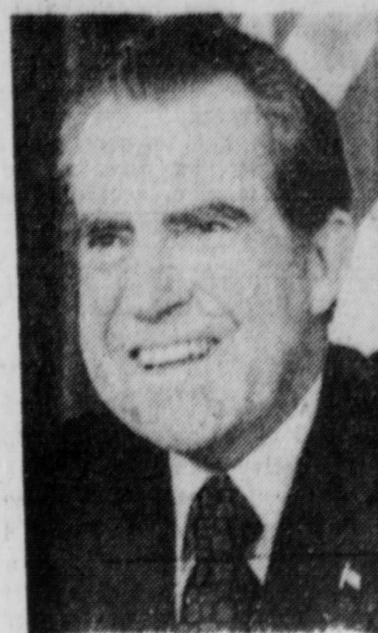

During Nixon's previous hospital stay, Lungren, in a news conference Sept. 30, referred to "the danger of other tests," specifically singling out the venogram as one of them. He said it can have dangerous side effects because it involves injecting iodine into the bloodstream and brings on "the possibility of restarting the phlebitis."

He said at that time he had chosen not to use the test, but said "there may be a time in the future we will have to resort to this."

The hospital, largest on the West Coast, was not prepared for Nixon's arrival and hurriedly opened the previously unoccupied seventh floor, which was not scheduled for occupancy for several weeks. It was the only part of the hospital with room for Nixon and his Secret Service guards, a spokesman said.

Hospital vice president Jack Weiblin said the hospital did not know the former president was returning as a patient until Nixon appeared, limping through a rear service door.

RICHARD M. NIXON

Former Aides Blame Nixon For Obscene Word on Trudeau

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Previously secret White House transcripts indicate that former President Richard M. Nixon called Canadian Prime Minister Pierre E. Trudeau an obscene name during a meeting with top aides, according to two Watergate cover-up defendants.

"That asshole Trudeau was something else," they contend Nixon said in a meeting with top aides in the spring of 1973.

The two defendants—H.R. Haldeman and John D. Ehrlichman, both once Nixon's closest aides—attributed the remark to Nixon in a private conversation with U. S. District Judge John J. Sirica Monday. Their action was made public today.

The remark appeared on a White House tape played in court on Monday. But a transcript prepared by the prosecution attributed the phrase to Haldeman and did not mention Trudeau as the object of the remark.

In a whispered bench conference with Sirica shortly thereafter, Haldeman's lawyers protested vigorously that the voice making the remark was not Haldeman's. Attorneys for Haldeman and Ehrlichman insisted the voice was Nixon's and demanded the record be corrected.

No action was taken immediately.

Some observers in the courtroom who listened to the tape were doubtful it was Haldeman's voice they had heard, although the phrase was so short and the conversation moved so quickly it was difficult to tell who had made the remark.

The phrase cropped up at a meeting Nixon held on the afternoon of March 22, 1973, with Ehrlichman, Haldeman, John N. Mitchell and John W. Dean III as the Watergate cover-up began unraveling.

According to the prosecution transcripts, midway through the conversation—for no apparent reason—Nixon said: "I got to handle my Canadian friend . . . at the moment."

A few moments later with no other reference to Canada or to Trudeau, the obscene phrase was heard.

Shortly thereafter, Nixon picked up the phone as the Watergate discussion continued and said: "Can you get me Prime Minister Trudeau in Canada, please?"

The Watergate conversation

continued and a few minutes later the telephone rang. Nixon picked up the phone. "Hello," he said, and then paused. "I don't want to talk. Sure . . . Christ."

There was no indication whether the incoming call was from Trudeau or from someone else.

"That's not the kind of word Bob would use," one of Haldeman's lawyers told reporters after the tape was played. "He just didn't say it."

Ehrlichman's lawyers also filed a thick sheaf of corrections they said should be made in the prosecutor's transcripts including the Trudeau relay. Dean indicated that he sometimes served as a go-between in the dispute over raising the money to pay the Watergate burglars' legal fees and keep them quiet about White House involvement.

The former White House counsel was spending his seventh straight day on the witness stand in the Watergate cover-up trial of Haldeman, Ehrlichman, Mitchell and two other former Nixon associates.

Dean said Mitchell, then campaign director for Richard M. Nixon, appeared to regard the need to raise money as a House aide Haldeman and Ehrlichman went "back and forth" during several meetings with John N. Mitchell in 1972 on who was going to raise hush money for the Watergate burglars.

The nation is headed for a deep recession this year and President Ford should take steps to halt it, an unofficial economic advisor to Ford and a top auto executive said Wednesday in separate reports of economic gloom.

"Washington has told everyone not to buy and the recession is here now in the auto industry. This 'don't buy' philosophy is hurting us," Chrysler Chairman Lynn Townsend said. His remarks came as the auto industry reported its worst new car sales period in 10 years.

Paul McCracken, a University of Michigan economist who helped Ford organize the economic summit conferences, said in a newspaper interview the economy would hit the bottom of a "V-shaped recession" in mid-1975 but rebound quickly.

In other bleak signs for the economy:

—The auto industry reported new car sales for the first 20 days in October were down 21.8 per cent from a year ago.

—Prices on the New York Stock Exchange suffered their worst decline in nine weeks in the wake of government reports of low orders for durable goods and higher consumer prices.

—A renewed confrontation between oil exporting nations and oil companies over company profits—now reaching record levels—was threatened.

The Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries said it was drafting a new pricing system for crude oil that would limit the profits of the companies.

—The exchange value of the U.S. dollar was at a six-month low in Brussels and a five-month low in Zurich. Foreign bankers said the weakness of the dollar was caused by the gloomy prospects for the American economy.

Economic Gloom Continues, Ford Urged to Take Steps

12 of 13 Area Candidates Discuss the Issues

By JON POWERS

KINGSTON.

With Election Day drawing perilously near, 12 of the 13 candidates for political office in Ulster County presented their best plans and programs for the 150 people who attended the Mid-Ulster County League of Women Voters' Candidate's Night Wednesday at the George Washington School.

Leading off the program were the three candidates for the 25th Congressional District: incumbent Republican Hamilton Fish Jr., Democrat-Liberal Nicholas B. Angell and Free Libertarian Sanford Cohen.

FISH, avoiding any direct confrontation with his two opponents, emphasized the economy and inflation during his five minutes at the microphone. Expressing some doubt that President Ford's voluntary inflation fighting program will work, he proposed that the Wage and Price Stabilization Board be given mandatory powers to regulate aspects of the economy. And, in response to Angell's charge that he voted against a bill that would have rolled back the price of oil, Fish noted that he did in fact vote in favor of such legislation twice last year, with both bills vetoed by President Nixon.

ANGELL, charging that legislators, politicians and incumbents "are no longer accountable to the people," said he will resign from office if he fails to live up to any of the ten promises that he enumerated earlier in the campaign. Angell said "Fish's program on inflation is no program at all," and added that his opponent "did nothing" about the Russian wheat deal.

COHEN's familiar campaign theme—"too much government"—surfaced repeatedly during his remarks. "If you elect me, I will do nothing for you. I promise. Too much has been done for you. Government has caused crises after crises. I'll give you control of your government. Thirty-five per cent of your income goes for taxes. If you don't want that, I'll fight like the devil for you."

Some very familiar campaign themes surfaced when the two candidates for the 101st Assembly District, Democrat Maurice Hinchey and incumbent Republican H. Clark Bell, stepped behind the podium.

HINCHEY called for a progressive income tax at all wage levels, called for full-time representation in the state legislature and promised to fight for establishment of an Industrial Development Commission that would attract jobs and industry to Ulster County.

BELL, citing his efforts to help the local economy, pointed to new highway improvement projects, Job Development Authority loans for local businesses and the introduction of snow making equipment at Belleayre Mountain, all approved in the past two years. "I ask you to look at the record, look at the qualifications, and then put the best man to work for you," he said.

The three candidates for what has become perhaps the most volatile campaign of the season—that for Ulster County Sheriff—also had their say Wednesday night. Democrat

William B. Martin, Independent Yvonne Walliser and Republican Thomas Mayone addressed the gathering.

MS. WALLISER cited the urgent need for a "progressive correctional institution" in Ulster County, rather than the "holding pen for people who commit crimes" that she claims the Ulster County Jail has become. She said that "rehabilitation, education and counseling" are needed at the jail to prevent first-time offenders from becoming hardened and repeated law breakers.

MARTIN, however, said he "operates a jail, not a correctional facility." But he pointed out that he has instituted religious, educational and counseling programs at the facility, despite an inadequate staff, and that a police training program, work release program and juvenile aid department were all added during his administration. He said Ms. Walliser didn't have the experience to run the jail and said Mayone's only qualification for the job was "complete loyalty to the Republican Party."

MAYONE, in turn, pointed at conditions and incidents that have occurred at the jail under Martin's reign: promised increased patrols, better training, improved working conditions and salaries for the deputies, and specific rules and regulations for inmates and staff.

Also speaking Wednesday were the three candidates for the 40th Senatorial District: incumbent Republican Richard E. Schermerhorn, Democrat James Weyant and Liberal Paul Atkinson.

ATKINSON, stating that both his opponents espouse Conservative viewpoints, said he entered the race to give the voters a choice. He called for tax-breaks for small and moderate size businesses, no taxes at all for senior citizens, tough gun control legislation (that remark drew the only spontaneous applause of the night), serious prison reform and a halt to nuclear power plant construction.

SCHERMERHORN warned that upstate areas will suffer if the Democrats sweep the elections in November. "They'll probably do away with Ray Schuler (DOT Commissioner Raymond T. Schuler of Kingston). I'll have to call Matthew Troy in Brooklyn if I want any highway jobs for my district." He said an alternative to the property tax must be found to finance education, said he'd "have to think" about giving local communities veto power over nuclear power plant construction and blamed environmentalists for holding up important construction projects in the Mid-Hudson Valley.

WEYANT said welfare reform and the elimination of tax loopholes would help free additional money for education, said construction of new roads would help reduce unemployment, said he's satisfied with existing gun control laws and said he doesn't think nuclear reactors are either safe or necessary.

ALEX NIRENBERG, Democratic candidate for the 48th Senatorial District, didn't have anyone to debate because his opponent, incumbent Republican Edwyn Mason, had a prior commitment and didn't attend. "I never have met Mason," said Nirenberg, "He always has a prior commitment."

New Plans for Stewart Field

NEWBURGH, N.Y. (AP)—A report published in Wednesday's editions of the Newburgh Evening News.

Mays declined to discuss the specifics of his plan, but he said he hoped to make the plan public within two weeks.

Several proposals have been put forward to utilize the field since it was abandoned by the Air Force. One plan, calling for the airfield to be expanded into a major passenger jetport serving the New York City metropolitan area, was discarded recently.

Carl Mays, a former Orange County planning director, developed the plan, according to Howard Samuels, the former New York City Off Track Betting Chief, supported the recycling plant proposal during his unsuccessful bid for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination.

"If I had won the primary, I would have revealed the specifics and made them part of my platform," he said.

Samuels said he understood that under the proposal, "New York City and counties around the state would send refuse by barge to the plant."

"The central plant would reclaim the material. Aluminum and steel would be produced from the disposed metals. Energy pellets would be created and would be able to provide 10 to 12 per cent of the energy needs of New York State," he was quoted as saying.

He predicted that 2,500 jobs would be created within a five-year period and that recycled metals would produce a profit amounting to 50 per cent of New York's City's sanitation expenditures.

Team Head Corrects Martin

ALBANY Martin was the first person approached.

The head of the New York State Commission of Correction, investigative team which began a lengthy, in-depth probe at the Ulster County Jail on Sept. 4 says that, contrary to a statement made by Sheriff William B. Martin, the sheriff was the first person approached in the investigation.

Martin said at a Town of Ulster Democratic Social Club meeting Monday night that when inspectors toured the jail in September a notebook was left on a table with words written in it to the effect that County Legislature Chairman Peter J. Savago had been interviewed prior to the beginning of the investigation. "If that isn't trying to short change a public officer, I don't know what is," Martin remarked at the meeting.

Robert Byers, who heads the commission investigative team that began its work in September, told the Freeman that was interviewed was on the night of Sept. 4, after Martin was advised the investigation had begun.

Pointing out that the probe "is not yet closed," Byers said members of the jail administration, including the sheriff, undersheriff and others, other jail personnel, inmates and county officials and interested residents are among those who have been interviewed in the investigation.

Byers said Savago was "absolutely not" interviewed prior to the start of the investigation. He went on to explain that the first Savago Ulster County Jail "is — and for some time has been — poorly administered by Sheriff William B. Martin."

The commission said there is "ample evidence" of mismanagement, that there are violations of commission minimum standards and the classification of inmates and that many previous commission recommendations have not been complied with.

A detailed report on the findings of the investigative team prior to Oct. 16 is slated to be released soon.

'Perseverance Pays Off'

KINGSTON A dash of luck and a good measure of alertness and perseverance paid off for city police early today as they combined the three ingredients and caught a young man who allegedly burglarized two Kingston businesses overnight.

Incidents leading to the arrest of Wayne Menzel, 22, of 365 Washington Avenue on two counts of third degree burglary began at 3:48 a. m. while Sgt.

Harry Short and Patrolman George Carlson of the Uniform Division were on routine patrol on Foxhall Avenue.

The two officers were checking the front of the El Cid restaurant when the alarm suddenly went off. They ran to the rear of the restaurant where they found a screen slashed and a window partially open. But the thief had apparently fled at the first sound of the alarm.

Police called the owner of the restaurant, John Misasi, who went to the scene, and checked the interior of the building.

Then, during a search of the area surrounding the restaurant, Sgt. Short and Ptl. Carlson noted an auto parked across the street with an engine that was still warm. Items apparently taken in a burglary earlier at Sickler's Delivery Service were spotted in the car, police said.

The two officers then staked out the car from inside the restaurant, and after a wait of about an hour Menzel showed up at the vehicle. He was arrested and charged with the two burglaries.

Recovered from the auto were two money bags containing an undetermined amount of change and an adding machine taken from Sickler's Delivery Service earlier, police said.

America Prepares for Metric Invasion

By WADE BURKHART

GLENHAM The metric system's basic advantage is that it is based on scientific quantities and on the number 10 or its multiples. The system is being used in the U.S. and abandoned by the British in 1965, based on a variety of things, some of them probably no longer known to anyone but God, and few of them logical.

The panel of experts was assembled by the U.S. Department of Commerce, and they addressed about 60 representatives of business, manufacturing, education in the Textile Research Laboratory's auditorium in Glenham Wednesday.

The metric system was better. He believed it was better, but emphasized that a plan was needed to avert chaos.

"It's often thought that government has the greater impact on metric development," said Alvarez. "That isn't so. It's business."

IBM is now in the third year of a 10-year plan to be metric by 1982. Charles S. Holovka, an IBM staff engineer at Endicott, is heavily involved in the plan. He said that the metric changeover was proving to be less costly than was feared. "It has become apparent that many of the projected costs were imagined," is how he put it.

One "imagined" heavy cost was the scrapping of production machinery for metric machines. Holovka said IBM had found that in the course of normal wear and attrition it could replace the machines of customary measure with metric measured machines, at no real additional cost.

IBM, and Holovka, are advocates of the careful walk into metrication, rather than the forced march. "Too much too soon," warned Holovka, "is as bad as too much too late."

He also counseled careful planning. "We are convinced," he said, "that planning and coordination are the keys to turning problems into opportunities."

IBM has even found that metrication has some "fringe benefits," outside its recognized efficiencies. He said his corporation was benefiting from "a good spring cleaning of practices and old habits," as the result of its moves toward metrication.

Robert Alvarez, representing the National Bureau of Standards, disagreed with the federal government leading the way into the metric system. He said the government was reluctant to be "coercive" about metrication, and felt that it would come naturally through business.

Alvarez said 70 per cent of the manufacturers polled during a three-year metrication study which ended in 1971 said

Mayor Lists Appointments

KINGSTON Mayor Francis R. Koenig announced a number of appointments to various city boards this week including three reappointments on the Historic Landmarks Commission, one reappointment on the Kingston Housing Authority and one new member for the Kingston Urban Renewal Agency.

Joseph D. Scholar of 42 Johnston Avenue will replace Celestino (Chil) Caruso of 67 Van Gaasbeck Street, an original Koenig appointee, as a member of the urban renewal agency. Scholar, a well-known businessman, operates Scholar's on Broadway and is an active member of the Central Broadway Businessmen's Association.

Caruso, appointed to the agency by Koenig in 1970, was one of the key members of the mayor's cabinet, working closely with Koenig on the redevelopment of Broadway East. Koenig said Caruso chose not to continue on the agency. "He's out of town most of the time right now so he sent in his letter of resignation," Koenig told the Freeman.

Koenig added that efforts to redevelop the Broadway East commercial parcel were continuing and that Caruso's assistance would be solicited "indirectly."

Koenig also refuted reports that Caruso was headed for another post in city government, that of purchasing officer. Koenig called for establishment of the post in his Mayor's Message in January and Caruso did some studies for the mayor earlier this year. Applicants are now being sought for the $172 a week position. "I don't think he's even interested in it," Koenig told the Freeman.

The mayor also announced reappointments to the Historic Landmarks Commission including Mrs. Avery Smith of 48 Maiden Lane, the secretary, G. Vincent Bradley of 215 Manor Avenue, the attorney and Harry Thayer of 43 Crown Street, the vice chairman.

Stanley Petro Jr. of 84 Lincoln Street was reappointed to a five-year term on the Kingston Housing Authority. Petro was originally appointed by former Mayor Raymond W. Garrahan in 1969.

The terms of the members of the Landmarks Commission run for three years, expiring on Sept. 8, 1977. Scholar will fill Caruso's unexpired term which runs out on June 30, 1976.

Landlord Scores Kramer

KINGSTON Jack Goldstein, who owns 65 apartment dwellings in Kingston of which he says "40 have welfare tenants," has come out against Social Services Commissioner Bernhardt Kramer's recent statements concerning welfare fraud.

"He's so anxious to cut welfare and fraud," Goldstein stated. "But you can never get the man on the phone. You have to go through 14 different people if you want to get him."

Goldstein, who lives at 435 Pearl Street, says he owns 14 apartment houses where he says he has often observed "welfare cheats."

"You try to turn them in and you get absolutely nowhere," he said. "They ask you for the name of his caseworker. Who knows who his caseworker is? Then they tell you that unless you can give them his caseworker and his social security number they can't help you. We need a simpler system."

Goldstein also charged that Kramer "runs a Gestapo up there."

CARROLS PRESENTS ANOTHER ROAST BEEF MEMORY.

I was sitting in Carrols the other day having one of their new Roast Beef Heros. And as I tasted my first bite, I started to remember...

"It was a Sunday afternoon at Grandma's house almost twenty years ago. The family was gathered for dinner, and everyone was there. Flowing out of the kitchen was the mouth-watering smell of a roast beef cooking. As usual, my Uncle Jack had his ear glued to the radio, listening to the Brooklyn Dodgers. Over the clatter of dishes Grandma called to me.

"Mickey... Mickey. Come see what Grandma has."

"Grandma's kitchen was a busy world always waiting to be explored. Great crocks and canisters, painted bowls and stacks of goodies were everywhere. I spied a basket piled high with my favorite Italian rolls.

"Give me a hand with this roast," Grandma gestured to the oven. "Those hero rolls can wait 'til dinner."

"When she opened the oven door, I could see the roast beef sizzling away, and I took a deep breath. I could hardly wait to eat..." And you know, Carrols New Roast Beef Hero is just as good as that roast beef hero I had that day at Grandma's.

Cooke and Greenblott

Surprising interest has been generated this year in the judicial contest for the two vacancies on the state's Court of Appeals, the highest tribunal in New York. Seven candidates, including two from a splinter party, have all staged vigorous campaigns for election to this high post with some spending excessive amounts of money to achieve their aims. In this crowded and diverse field of candidates, the Freeman feels that Appellate Court Justice Lawrence Cooke, a Democrat-Liberal and Louis M. Greenblott, a Republican, would serve the people of the Hudson Valley best.

Both jurists are assigned to the Third Department, and are familiar with the needs of this area. Justice Cooke, who has been described as an activist judge, lives in Monticello and is a familiar and respected figure in Ulster County law circles. He has been termed well qualified by both the New York State Bar Association and the Ulster County bar. Justice Cooke has drawn high praise for his arguments in favor of revision of the rape laws to protect victims from irrelevant disclosures of their past, and also has proposed ending "unjustified" differences in criminal sentencing, advocating a uniform-sentence review board.

Justice Greenblott, of Binghamton, also has been termed well qualified by the state bar association. He has been described in the press as a moderate liberal, and his judicial wisdom and humanity have gained the respect of lawyers who have appeared before him. Judge Greenblott has exhibited legal expertise in all fields, especially in appeals cases dealing with labor matters. Both jurists would be great assets to the state's highest court.

Allowed to Speak Out

Every now and then there surfaces an example of official retaliation against a public employee who "blows the whistle" on questionable government practices. It is gratifying that in the latest such episode to come to light the attempt was aborted.

John E. Holt's sin, in the eyes of his General Services Administration boss, was two-fold: he balked at the Nixon administration's effort to politicize the civil service, and he alerted Congress to alarming possibilities in a proposed computer network to be shared by federal agencies. The GSA chief, Arthur F. Sampson, fired him—allegedly because of unsatisfactory performance of his duties.

The unsatisfactory performance rating has now been reversed by a GSA job review panel. In consequence the dismissal order was rescinded.

This is a triumph for the principle that government employees must not be penalized for raising questions about activities of the agencies they work for. If such employees are punished for their outspokenness, and especially if the punishment is to be so drastic as dismissal, that is sure to inhibit others who might otherwise be inclined to speak up about things they think are wrong.

The harm in this is well illustrated by the Holt case. Attempts to politicize the civil service must be resisted for the general good. There are valid questions, too, about possible invasion of privacy should the GSA's proposed computer network called FEDNET be installed. Members of Congress recognized this and blocked funds for the program. This might not have happened had John E. Holt remained silent and not given congressional investigators data on the project.

Magnificent Gift

This is a note of gratitude to Joseph M. Hirshhorn for his magnificent gift to the American people. The Hirshhorn Museum and Sculpture Garden in Washington, D. C., has just been opened to the public. It houses a collection of 6,000 paintings and sculptures donated by Hirshhorn. The new museum is a part of the Smithsonian Institution.

There is a happy symbolism in the fact that two California women touring the East Coast were the first visitors. This emphasizes that as time passes multitudes drawn to the nation's capital from all across the country will view this fabulous assemblage of treasures collected by the philanthropist over a period of many years.

Berry's World

...and so, as you can see, the World Football League isn't the ONLY world with its troubles!

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — Less than three months after President Ford promised he would run an open White House, he vetoed a Freedom of Information bill, which would have given the public more access to government documents.

The veto was accompanied by a move inside the White House to tighten security clearances. A memo, intended for the eyes only of staff chief Donald Rumsfeld, called for establishing procedures "to ensure that only cleared personnel deal with national security materials."

The memo proposed "a system" which would "continually verify" the tight security. It was necessary, stressed the memo, "to be certain that no one who has access to national security matters is not properly cleared."

Both the veto and the security crackdown are intended to protect diplomatic and military secrets, a White House spokesman explained.

Of course we don't wish to jeopardize the nation's security. But in the past, our leaders have used security regulations to censor the news and protect themselves. They have swept their blunders and embarrassments, their inefficiency and corruption under the secrecy stamp.

There are surprisingly few documents that must be kept secret in the interest of national security. The number doesn't even begin to approach the 20 million documents and papers that the government hides from the people.

President Ford, who started his presidency with such openness, has been listening lately to Henry Kissinger. The Secretary of State gets highly excited over news leaks, which he fears could hamper his personal diplomacy.

His howls about leaks helped to stimulate the wiretaps and other excesses of the Nixon Administration. Now he is again in an uproar over leaks. He is particularly upset over our stories, quoting from secret documents on the Cyprus crisis and African policy.

On October 7, he slashed cable distribution to the various bureaus. The European Affairs Bureau, for example, was cut from 30 to six copies of incoming cables. This was accompanied by a strict warning not to circumvent the limitation by Xeroxing secret cables.

Top aides have also been making the rounds to discuss the leaks and to impress on the underlings how much Kissinger detests them.

"It's the old Nixon paranoia," one State Department official told us. "The Secretary believes we're all out to get him. He runs foreign affairs like a mid-19th century German diplomat."

Footnote: It should be added, of course, that Kissinger's diplomatic style continues to produce amazing results.

PENTAGON BLUES: The most dreaded word in the bureaucratic language, "Rif," is now being whispered in the backrooms of the Pentagon. Rif means reduction-in-force.

Pentagon planners believe it will take a drastic Rif to keep the defense budget within acceptable limits. The stark fact is that the inflationary squeeze has sent weapons costs skyrocketing. Inflation has already robbed this year's defense budget of a staggering $6 billion in purchasing power.

In modern warfare, the Pentagon chiefs believe, machines are more important than men. A B-1 bomber, for example, will cost $76 million instead of the $46 million that was originally forecast. To maintain our arsenal, therefore, they must make drastic savings elsewhere.

A gigantic Rif, they fear, is inevitable. They are quietly preparing contingency plans that could reduce captains, majors and lieutenant colonels to noncommissioned officers.

"It will be (expletive deleted) bloody," one general told us.

WATCH ON WASTE: The armed forces are short of doctors to take care of legitimate military patients. Yet in our military hospitals, surgeons perform hundreds of face-lifts each year to beautify military wives, and the taxpayers pick up the doctor bills.

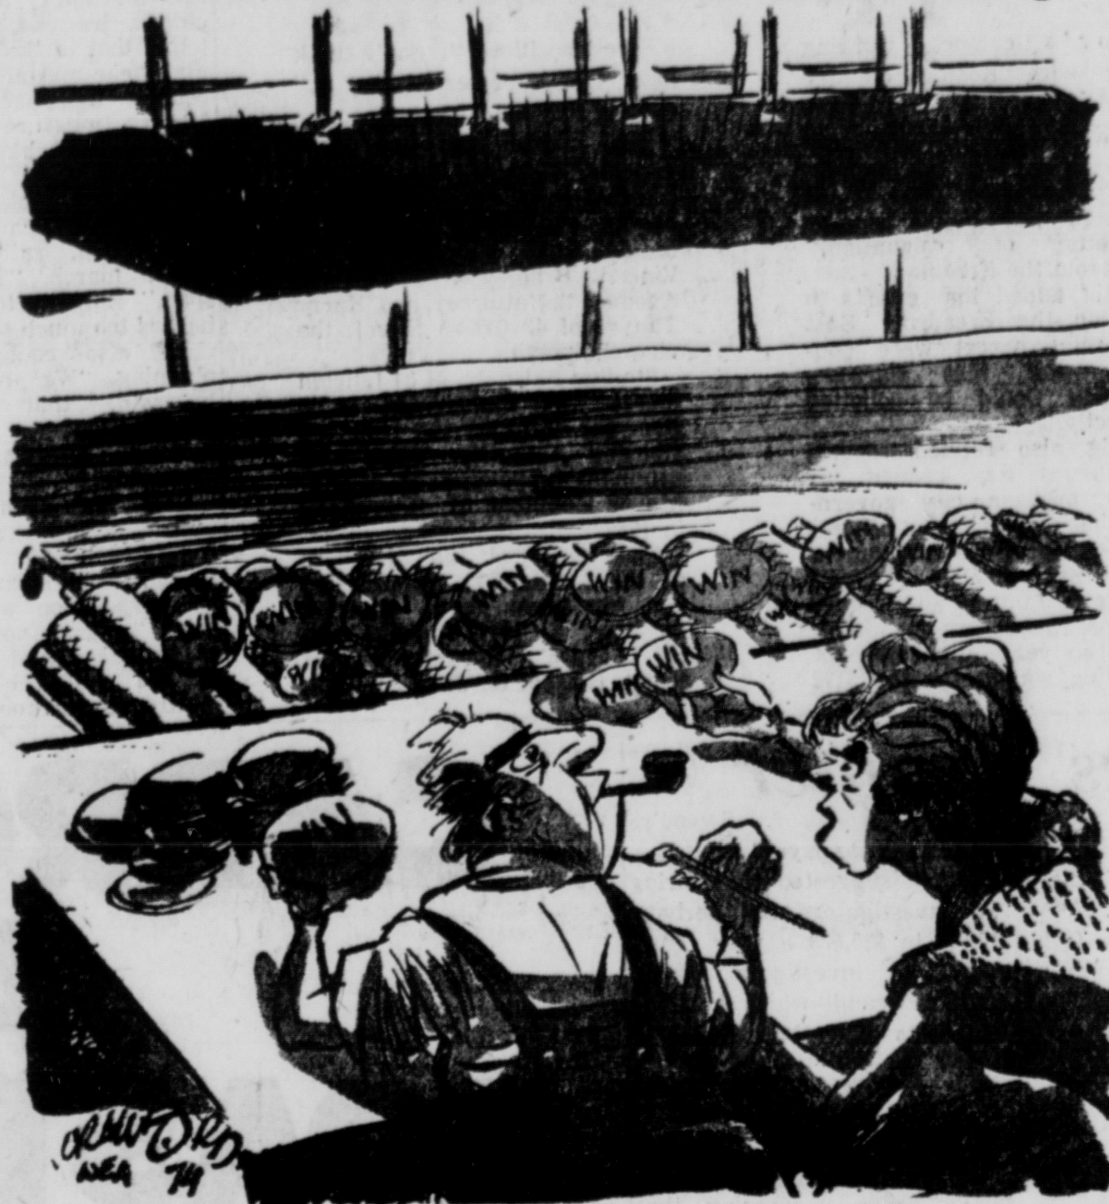

Air Force surgeons alone performed 141 face-lifts last year. The number of beauty operations was even higher in the other armed services. A Pentagon spokesman explained that the face-lifts are permitted only when "space and time allow." Each plastic surgeon is required "to maintain a degree of competency in this area," a spokesman said.

BRASS RING: A brass ring, good for a free ride on the Washington Merry-go-Round, goes to Missouri's Attorney General John Danforth.

In behalf of the state, he recently filed suit against Ralston-Purina for alleged price-fixing. Danforth's grandfather founded Ralston-Purina, his father was chairman of the board and two brothers now serve on the board. Danforth's own assets consist primarily of Ralston-Purina stock, which he placed in a blind trust when he entered public service.

Although it could hurt his own financial interest, Danforth said he would follow the recommendations of the chief prosecutor on the case.

"Well, It's One Production Line That's Moving!"

On the Right

Ford at Congress

By WILLIAM F. BUCKLEY JR.

Gerald Ford's appearance before the House Committee would appear to have been a near-total success. Three aspects of it bear scrutiny.

The first is the matter of his confessed lies during the week end preceding Mr. Nixon's resignation. What happened, he explained, is that for days and weeks and months he had tirelessly repeated the same line, that he didn't think Nixon had been guilty of an impeachable offense. But now here he was, having only just that very morning been told by General Haig about the disastrous June tape, scheduled to give three speeches over the weekend before the Monday when that tape would be announced.

Ford was forthright: rather than suddenly clam up when asked the inevitable question, he just kept the old answer coming. It is like the politician who says he isn't going to run for a particular office, then decides one day that he will run but that the time to make that announcement is a couple of weeks off, so he continues to say No, he won't run. It is routine. In the case of Jerry Ford, something more. If he had done anything else, it would have looked like pressure by Ford on Nixon to resign. Such a pressure would have strategically damaging consequences when, as President, Ford had to deal with Nixon loyalists.

Ego te absolvo.

Two. The ranks, of these visibly diminish. Mr. Ford spoke about Nixon's having left the White House in shame and disgrace. Meanwhile, the trial unfolds, and the first line of defense of the principal aides of President Nixon is: he told us to do it. No longer the stout maintenance, by the first team, of everybody's innocence all the way around.

The hysteria about how Ford's pardon would make it forever impossible to arrive formally at a conclusion of Nixon's guilt in the cover-up becomes increasingly silly. It is as if to say that by losing the logs of Christopher Columbus, we'd be left without proof that the world is round. Even before Mr. Ford's appearance, John Doar, the principal Republican expert on Watergate, had said the record was, for the purposes of the impeachment's three counts, complete. And the Prosecutor Jaworski, whom Ford did not consult, refuses to criticize Ford. He tells us that the record is complete, and that the part of it that is not now known will transpire during the trial. And at that time, there will simply be no doubting the complicity of Richard Nixon. As a matter of fact there is no doubting it now. Not unless the tapes are forgeries, and Richard Nixon never said that they were.

So, Ford stressed, to the apparent satisfaction of most of the members of the committee, the line that what he did for Nixon was "good for the country."

Now I happen to think that is correct. But I am a little sorry that Mr. Ford placed such total reliance upon it. Because it seems to me that the right of executive clemency is among other things the right to do something that is good for an individual, even if it is not good for the country. When Congress passes a private bill, let us say to make a cash award to the Widow Jones because of exceptional circumstances, Congress is doing something that is good for the Widow Jones, not at all good for the taxpayers who have to come up with the money to support her.

Probably it would have been, net, better for the country if Richard Nixon had been shot on the spot, banana-republic style. But (quite rightly) we don't do these things, insisting on the alternative of a trial by jury with all kinds of protections. This would have meant, in the estimate of the Justice Department, over a year of trial, and Mr. Ford judged that this would not have been in the best interests of the country. While agreeing with him, I wish he had said: "Moreover, it would not have been in the best interests of Mr. Nixon, either, and I chose to exercise my power to do something, under the circumstances, good for Mr. Nixon. I don't believe his good and the country's are incompatible."

Finally, there was the phenomenon: a President of the United States, answering the questions of a democratic tribunal. With the single exception of a lady exhibitionist from New York, they were well and honestly framed. What was lost in the process?

Nothing. And much was gained. The President can't put all his thoughts on TV, but there are many he can, and who knows, maybe this will become known as the Nixon precedent.

Nicholas Von Hoffman:

Lessons from Monopolyland

WASHINGTON — Evidently President Ford made a mistake when he chose not to recommend jumping the tax on gas 20 cents a gallon and rationing it. Both these measures would have had about the same effect on inflation as passing out WIN buttons while devastating the already distressed automobile industry, but they would satisfy our craving for Calvinist economics or bullet-biting.

The ascendant opinion among editorialists and commentators is that good medicine must taste bad and that it will somehow help us if we turn our freeways into pedestrian nature trails. The acceptance of the sort of Calvinist need for self-inflicted pain is puzzling in a nation that grew up playing Monopoly. By all rights anyone who's ever had his token land on Marvin Gardens should be impervious to the argument that a sudden rise in the price of a commodity, i.e. gas, can cause inflation.

In the game of Monopoly each player gets $1,500, and the bank — that is the government or the Federal Reserve Board — gets to keep the rest. The bank may make loans in the form of mortgages, but, unlike what happens in Washington, it can't create new money. The ratio of dollars to real estate or to the number of players is fixed and must remain the same. How different from the United States where the number of paper dollars per person has gone up from 755 to 1,940 in 6.049 last year.

In the beginning of a Monopoly game the relative liquidity or cash on hand between the players changes according to what properties they each buy. Thus a player who buys Pennsylvania Avenue (price $320) or Boardwalk ($400) will soon find he's eaten into his $1,500 grubstake, which may make it difficult for him to buy Park Place from another player in order to complete his monopoly. To do it he may have to pay more than the going rate, but you'll notice that price rise doesn't cause a general rise. All that happens is that the buyer is short on cash; he's in a little, private liquidity crunch.

Now suppose he finds the money to put up hotels on his monopoly so that he can charge $2,000 to the unlucky wretch whose token lands there. What does this sudden jump in the price of real estate do to the economy of Monopolyland?

It transfers wealth. It makes player A richer than player B, but it creates no rise in other rentals. Quite the contrary, it tends to depress them since, if the cash-short B lands on Virginia Avenue, owned by C, B will try to convince C it's in his own interest to drop the rent and thereby prevent B from going into bankruptcy and leaving the game. In no event, however, is the purchasing power of the Monopolyland dollar degraded.

The only way you can inflate a Monopoly game is if the banker cheats by grabbing a fistful of money from a second Monopoly set and hands it to the players, who then use it to pay their $50 assessment for the Grand Opera Opening. To the receiving player it will seem that he is getting his full $50 payment, but actually he is getting less. How much less is determined by how much the banker has diluted the currency. For the first six months of this year the Federal Reserve board has been diluting our currency at a rate of not less than 5.5 per cent and sometimes as high as 7 per cent. This is the "tight" money policy you've been reading about.

Now, if the banker cheats this way in a Monopoly game, and the receiving player catches on as he inevitably must if the cheating continues, he's going to demand $60 instead of $50 to compensate for the loss in the dollar's value. He has no choice because there are now more dollars per unit of real estate or per player than there were at the start of the game.

So the question is: What would happen if we used a fixed money supply in real life as we do in the game? We would have constantly falling prices, since we would be making more goods, more cars, more TVs, etc., to be purchased by the same number of dollars. The same thing would happen in Monopoly if you kept the same total amount of money in the game while you doubled the size of the board. In real life this would also ultimately mean not only a drop in the interest rates, but negative rates under which the bank would pay you to borrow money.

Kopf Hits Sewerage Plan

WOODSTOCK — Kopf said the big question is at least 50 per cent by the time the project nears completion and fixed income taxpayers in this would create an overpopulation of the town," he concluded.

Republican candidate for councilman of Woodstock William (Bill) Kopf has taken a position with regard to the proposed sewerage plan for the town saying he doesn't feel that the town had done enough to correct the sewerage-pollution problem prior to proposing a total sewerage system.

"This, plus the high costs and partial allocation of the costs to the outlying areas does not convince him that the proposal is right for the town at this time," he said.

"How big is the problem and the solution?" he asked. "There is no question that the streams running through the town have pollution counts far above acceptable standards," Kopf said, adding that certain septic systems in the town are malfunctioning.

"Who are the stream polluters?" he asked. "Whose septic systems are running into the streets or nearby properties? No one seems to be able to pin all the sources of the problem," he suggested.

Kopf said he believes that the $2.5 million estimate will inflate

Although never mentioning Hinchey by name in a two page statement released this week, Bell said that the No-Fault Insurance Law "... which was a bipartisan program supported by Republicans and Democrats, and voted for by the Democratic leadership, represents good progressive consumer legislation..."

And, Bell added, "Unfortunately, some ambitious individuals, for political purposes, have engaged in Jacob Javits and his Democratic challenger, former U.S. Attorney General Ramsey Clark.

The debate was held at the editorial offices of The New York Times and initially focused on campaign financing and inflation. The third challenger for Javits Senate seat, Mrs. Barbara Keating, a Conservative, participated in the debate but was ignored by the two men when she tried to stop the arguing.

The fireworks started when Javits twisted around in his chair, shook his finger under Clark's nose and accused the Democrat of making "complete reckless untruths...lies," the Times reported.

Clark's face tightened. He began to ask a question. "You're not cross-examining me," snapped Javits.

"You're shaking your finger at me and I'm asking a question," Clark retorted. Mrs. Keating tried to inter-ject. "Gentlemen, may I..." But the two men ignored her, glaring at each other.

Mrs. Keating turned toward Javits and said, "I thought women talked a lot."

Sugar ... A Precious Commodity

PACKAGE OF SUGAR ... becoming a memory

KINGSTON
Sugar may be sweet, but its rapidly rising price is beginning to leave a sour taste. The result: some strange things are happening, or may soon occur, in relation to the suddenly precious commodity.

Some normally law-abiding restaurant customers are turning into pilferers, tucking away a few extra packets of the sweet stuff in pocket or purse on the way out.

And come Halloween the trick-or-treaters might be in for a few surprises themselves should some homeowners decide the cost of the trick might very well be less than that of the sugar-based candies which are the normal fare to ward off pranks.

A check at local restaurants shows that while sugar pilferage might not be widespread, it is occurring.

"We have taken sugar off the table and are serving it with the coffee," said a spokesman for Howard Johnson's Restaurant on Route 28. "It was unbelievable the way it was being taken."

"We've noticed that some of our guests have been taking sugar, but we haven't taken any steps yet," a spokesman for the Holiday Inn Restaurant told the Freeman. "Women have been taking it and putting it in their handbags."

A random check of several other local restaurants showed that none were having the problem, or at least they were not yet aware of it. Several restaurant managers said they have been using sugar bowls, which make it difficult to make off with the sweetener.

"Of course they could pour it in a napkin and roll it up," said one man, "but that would be a little too obvious."

The reason, apparently, for the rise in sugar-pinchings is the high cost of the commodity. Prices locally in several chain supermarkets ranged from $2.09 to $2.15 for five pounds. Nationwide, United Press International reports the price is more than $2 for five pounds, a rise from less than 70 cents not too long ago.

And the problem of sugar walking off with the customers in restaurants is not just a localized occurrence.

"Our customers will take all the free sugar they can get," a Chicago waitress told UPI.

Special

Some restaurants are making customers ask for sugar before they will give it out.

But if the prices seem high now, they may not have reached their peak yet.

The Philippines, which is one of the world's leading cane sugar producers with an estimated output of 2½ million tons, of which 1½ million tons is exported to the United States, last week announced a hike in sugar prices of 51 per cent.

At the same time, sugar prices reached a record $1,012.30 a ton in trading on the London Terminal Market, and one dealer said prices could go even higher when the Common Market and possibly the U.S.

start buying on the free market. Of course, with the price of sugar up, most anything made with sugar is bound to also rise in price. The so-called nickel candy might shrink in actual size to that of a nickel. But there is a bright side, too. Parents and dentists who cringe at mouths full of cavities might look on the price of sugar as a blessing in disguise. And weight watchers may find it takes less willpower to stay off the sweet stuff.

Push On for Probe of White Collar Crimes

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal prosecutors say they're by a score of other U.S. attorneys strain their limited manpower. Meantime, many prosecutors dig into more white-collar crimes than ever in support of department's recent emphasis on investigating fraud, embezzlement, political kickbacks and similar crimes. Several asked to be identified by name. The prosecutors said they're anxious for the drive to continue although the complex and investigations civil and criminal cases. And some are upset with what they're prodding state and local authorities to take over the prosecution of such routine cases as drug violations and auto thefts to free more of their time for corruption probes. The campaign was born out of the kickback investigation of Saxbe has promised fair prosecution of the rich and poor. Agnew and the Watergate scandal which shook public confidence in government and especially in the Justice Department. Some prosecutors said the Agnew and Watergate cases gave them the public support they needed to indict prominent individuals without suffering from accusations that their in-money to hire more lawyers into the white-collar cases. "The Agnew case indicated we can't possibly prosecute every crime committed, but to crack these cases, and the right now the emphasis is on public damn well wants us to," white-collar crime," said one said Dean C. Smith, U.S. attorney in Spokane, Wash. The prosecutors were unanimous in appealing for more number of cases so we can go to the white-collar cases."

Farm Milked Dry by Inflation

NASHVILLE, Ill. (AH) — Like his father, Casimer Kozuszek worked all his life to leave something for his sons: the family dairy farm. But his sons won't have it. Inflation milked it dry.

"The feed is too high and milk wasn't high enough," 66-year-old Kozuszek says. "I sold out because my boys were supposed to take over but there wasn't enough money and I'm getting too old."

Kozuszek sold his herd of dairy cows at auction in September. He still lives on the farmland, but no longer as a farmer. His son, who would have run it, works in a factory.

His voice accented by traces of his ancestral Poland, Kozuszek talks in plain terms: dollars and cents.

"In 1950, '51 and '52, corn was 85 cents a bushel and milk was more than $6 a hundredweight. Now corn is $3.80 a bushel and milk is still only a little over $6."

When Kozuszek sold his herd, milk for cheese and other commercial products brought only $6.39, though this month the price reached $7.50.

"Everything else is too high," he says. "Two years ago baling wire was $9. This year $23. Seven years ago a tractor cost $9,000. Now the same tractor is $18,000."

The Agriculture Department predicts that by 1980 half the nation's family-run dairy farms will vanish, the herds auctioned to large producers.

The Kozuszek farm was never a big operation: 50 cows, 190 acres. But until recently, it was a living. Clarence Kozuszek, 21, wanted to take over.

"Yes, I would, if it would have been profitable," he says. "We weren't coming out ahead, you know. We were just paying for the bills and that's it."

Now Clarence earns $3.80 an hour on the night shift at a factory.

"It's a lot easier," he says. "There you work for what you get. On a dairy farm you work all day long and all night and you'll have nothing to show for it. You don't know what's going to happen from day to day. If you can't make a living on the farm you have to do something else."

The trouble with farming, as the Kozuszecks see it, is that farmers won't work together. "They are going to have to organize like everybody else, like union labor. If they don't they are going to go broke," says Casimer.

Many Americans Still Follow Sun

WASHINGTON (AP) — Americans are continuing to pack up and follow manufacturers to the sunshine and open spaces of the South and West, according to the latest estimates of state populations.

The figures released Tuesday by the Census Bureau showed that the South and West accounted for virtually all of the nation's population growth last year.

The North Central section held steady with a one-tenth of 1 per cent growth in population, the Northeast quadrant lost population for the second year in a row, and the Northern and Western states grew by 1.5 per cent.

Specialists generally attributed the shift to several factors, a primary one being the movement of factories to less densely populated states in search of cheaper land and labor.

Since the fastest growing states include Florida and Arizona, two states with a sizeable number of retired people, the flow of retired persons also was considered an important factor.

An earlier report from the Census Bureau outlined the return of blacks to the South as a particular factor in the resurgence of that area.

Cutting across all of the changes, however, was the nation's falling birth rate. Although total population grew an average of 1.1 per cent a year in the first three years after the 1970 census, the growth slowed to seven-tenths of 1 per cent as of July 1 last year. That left total population at 211,390,000.

Even the growth rate in the South and West dropped — from an average annual increase of 1.8 per cent in both regions for the three previous years to 1.5 per cent last year.

Florida, with a 4.5 per cent growth rate, surpassed Arizona as the nation's fastest-growing state. The growth in Arizona slipped to a 3.9 per cent rate. Nevada moved into second place with a 4 per cent growth rate.

Colorado, formerly one of the nation's fastest-growing states, fell from a 3.9 per cent average annual growth rate to a 1.1 per cent rate.

Bullfighting Just a Hobby

EL PASO, Tex. (UPI) — On most Sunday afternoons between Easter and October, Hector Barragan, 39, leaves his hair styling shop and drives across the border to challenge fighting bulls in Mexico's bullrings.

Barragan, known as "El Pipo" in his elegant 16-chair shop and in the ancient "dance with death," said bullfighting is just a hobby and a good way to lose weight.

"This is a good way I've found to take care of my body," Barragan said. "I'm really becoming a health nut and I care for myself."

Barragan fights with the top professionals in Mexico in Juarez, which is across the border from El Paso, or one of several other Mexican towns. He is a banderillero, the man who jams two barbed sticks known as banderillas into the top of the bulls neck during the fight.

He said he is the first and only American citizen admitted to the banderillos' union in Mexico.

But his hobby is not all fun. "El Pipo" has been injured in the ring six times. A gore by a bull's horn last season kept him out of action for three weeks.

"I get the chills every time I go to a fight," he said. "But after it's all over it is better than a tranquilizer."

Barragan began his training as a bullfighter against a skinny steer at an El Paso bull fighting club at age 25, about 15 years after most fighters begin.

While aspiring bullfighters were learning the trade, Barragan was learning the hair styling business from his parents.

"The El Paso club decided they wanted to put their own fights together," he said. "I joined, and that was the first time I ever came across a bull. It's a real funny worm that gets into you. Once it gets in, it's hard to quit."

The weight trimming program has been successful. Barragan said he begins the bullfight season at about 200 pounds and quickly slims down to 180, which he maintains until the season ends.

As for quitting, Barragan said he has no plans, although he admits he is past his prime. "Most bullfighters' legs give out at 30," he said. "They usually retire by the time they're 35."

Resource Recovery In Nutmeg State

BRIDGEPORT, Conn. (AP) — The first plant in a statewide program to turn Connecticut's trash into fuel, glass and metal will emerge here soon on the site of an abandoned forge.

Such a large-scale recycling operation, handling everything from cellophane wrappers to refrigerators in one continuous process, has never been tried in this country.

From the outside it'll bear the smart look of a modern, well-landscaped factory. On the inside a concoction of new and old technologies will give it the appearance of the house that Jack built.

A churning, whirling, gurgling collection of pulverizers, blowers, conveyers, emulsions and magnets will gorge daily on 1,500 tons of waste from area communities, transforming 92 per cent of it into usable fuels for electric power plants and raw materials for bottlemakers and smelters.

Promoters, with fingers crossed, say it'll work. The state invested $1 million in a study and set up a special agency with bonding power to see that it does. And the area towns, which five years ago banded together with little more than good intentions to lick their mutual solid waste problems, say it had better.

"We knew at some point in time we wouldn't have a landfill left. Now all we have is anywhere from 6 to 18 months left," said John McCarthy Jr., president of the Interlocal Solid Waste Advisory Board.

The $30-million plant is the keystone of a $295-million plan to cope with solid waste statewide. Plant construction, slated to begin some time this fall, will take nearly two years. It will be the prototype of 10 similar plants around the state.

The plants will go into operation one per year, separating bulk refuse into reusable materials such as aluminum, glass and ferrous metals which will be sold.

The recovery will be the end point of a network of 45 centers where garbage will be collected and shipped to the recovery plants by truck, barge or rail. By 1985, state officials predict, the plants will recover annually 60 per cent of its throwaways. The state now only recycles about 5 per cent of its waste products, officials estimate.

In Connecticut and the rest of the East Coast, McCarthy says, there is very little space for burying garbage, or even the ash from incinerated waste. Residential land is expensive; other land may not be environmentally safe.

The area communities once considered a sophisticated incinerator to reduce the amount of trash and make a safe landfill. But McCarthy said it still didn't offer a solution to the often politically volatile landfill question.

More than 3.3 million tons of garbage — just over a ton per each state resident — went to Connecticut dumps and incinerators in 1972. It is predicted the amount will double in 20 years.

FBI Boss Asks Pinch On Career Criminals

MIAMI, Fla. (UPI) — FBI Director Clarence M. Kelley has asked trial lawyers and judges for help in tightening loopholes that enable "career criminals" to get off with little or no punishment.

"Some form of reform or updating across the board, very soon, seems essential," he said. "The welfare of our society demands that there be prompt, impartial and resolute handling of career criminals by prosecutors and the courts."

Kelley said there is need for speedier trials, higher standards for plea bargaining, less influencing of jurors by lawyers while jurors are being selected and less disparity in sentences imposed in different jurisdictions.

In a speech prepared for the Dade County Bar Association, Kelley said he was "confident that any fair-minded lawyer will be willing to balance his client's interest...against interests of his community, his country."

Police are working to make communities safer but the criminal justice system,

State environment officials say only one incinerator in Connecticut meets federal air pollution standards and 14 of the 144 landfills are considered environmentally sound.

To upgrade the existing disposal systems and build new ones along conventional lines to handle added volume would cost at least $342 million, the state estimates.

The Connecticut Resource Recovery Authority and the local towns have contracted with Garrett Research Associates of Laverne, Calif., to build and run the first plant and find markets for the recovered materials.

The plant will sit in an industrial section of this factory city, chosen for its easy access by surface and water transportation and its central position to the six to eight towns that will use it.

Trash will be brought to the facility by 60 trailer trucks per day from five transfer stations, 4 to 10 miles away.

All refuse will be poured into a 20,000-square-foot sunken storage area where it will await feeding through two automobile shredders.

Heavy-duty magnets then will extract ferrous metals from the heap. From there the refuse will move on to classifier towers where blowers and vacuum separate the lighter portion from the heavier.

The light portion will be sent through dryers in a final process to prepare a confetti-like material suitable as a supplement to oil in boilers at nearby electric utility plants.

Depending on the petroleum prices, the confetti will bring $12 to $15 per ton, McCarthy said.

The heavier fraction will pass through an amino acid-water emulsion where glass will be separated. The process, used for years in the mining industry, coats particles of glass with a chemical that causes them to float to the surface in a froth that will be skimmed.

dried and shipped to a northeastern Connecticut bottle manufacturer. The glass will make a low-grade, light green bottle.

A $19 per ton price has been promised in a letter of intent from the company, McCarthy said.

Aluminum is pulled from the remaining refuse through the use of an electromagnetic force field that causes chips of the metal to jump off a conveyor belt into bins.

McCarthy said the aluminum will bring $450 to $510 per ton and the ferrous metals removed earlier will draw $94 per ton.

Users of the plant will pay $4 million per ton to deposit their trash, but the authority hopes to refund some of the cost through sale of the recycled metal and glass.

From the reclamation plant, the remaining refuse, about eight-a-day truck loads, will be carted to a 65-acre landfill at a gravel excavation, along the Housatonic River 10 miles away. At that rate, the leftover waste from the towns will fill the site in about 20 years, McCarthy said.

At this time when breast cancer is still in the headlines, some 8,500 women serve as reminders that it is possible to make a complete physical and emotional comeback from the operation that women fear most. They are Reach to Recovery volunteers helping women like themselves who have undergone mastectomies, or surgical removal of a breast.

Reach to Recovery is the creation of Terese Lasser, who was operated on for breast cancer 22 years ago, according to Frieda Kaye of the Information Center on the Mature Woman in New York.

Mrs. Lasser asked herself several questions after her own surgery. "My husband was still alive then and I thought about how he was going to react," she said. The petite widow recalls today her worries about her friends' reactions, her clothes. Because she wouldn't get any answers, Terese Lasser devised exercises on her own to regain strength in her arm and she researched the clothes problem. Encouraged by her doctor, she then shared her understanding and knowledge with another patient.

"When I was able to help that woman walk and face her husband, she embraced me and cried, and I cried with her. I realized that I had something more important to do in life than just keep house and play golf," Mrs. Lasser told Frieda Kay in a personal interview.

The one-woman crusade, funded by her husband and contributions from grateful patients, became an integral part of the American Cancer Society's program in 1969. Under her direction it has expanded throughout the country and the world.

Local Program

The Ulster County Unit of the American Cancer Society holds the distinction of being the third unit in the New York State Division to initiate the mastectomy rehabilitation service. Local service got visited only at the request of her physician and the volunteer assists the physician in helping that patient achieve maximum physical, cosmetic, functional and psychological recovery. The Freeman was told there is no charge for any part of this service.

At the present time, the Ulster County Unit of ACS has nine volunteer visitors and one in training. The women come from all walks of life to help the cancer patient and prostheses or bras are not sold in the ACS office. The free service merely saves the patient unnecessary hours spent going from store to store.

According to Pat Yeager, ACS program director in Ulster County, not many stores carry prostheses or mastectomy bras and if they do, it is more than likely only one or two types will be stocked.

The Ulster County Reach to Recovery program maintains a list of speakers, physicians, nurses and mastectomees who will fill speaking engagements on the subject. A film, "Breast Self-Examination," is maintained for distribution to clubs and organizations and a life-like, life-size model of the female torso (with lesions) is used for individual teaching sessions.

The founder of Reach to Recovery, now a 61-year-old grandmother, sums up her feelings this way:

"We're the same women we were before except we have to wear something extra." Mrs. Lasser, whose late husband was author of "Your Income Tax," shows off her trim figure in form-fitting knits. Underneath she wears a specially-made garment that gives her a balanced, natural bosom look. She is constantly on call for newspaper interviews and TV talk shows where she hammers home the importance of regular check-ups and breast self-examinations.

"I am here today," she says, "because I didn't ignore that lump I found in my breast."

underway within a month after program was started in Onondaga (Syracuse) and Erie (Buffalo).

The service, Reach to Recovery has been approved by the Ulster County Medical Society and, in brief, consists of a visit with a mastectomy patient in the hospital or at home. The visit is made by a trained volunteer who has had a mastectomy and made a successful recovery. The volunteer here must be approved by her own physician first for this type of work. She is then carefully screened and trained.

The mastectomy patient is her family deal with a variety of problems.

Unique Service

Another service unique to Ulster County is consultation, by appointment, in the Ulster County Office at 400 Broadway. This consists of consultation to mastectomees on the permanent prostheses (breast forms) and mastectomy bras that are available to them. Samples of virtually every prosthesis manufactured may be seen at the office and a trained volunteer is available to advise and assist in the proper selection to meet particular needs. Etiquette Tips From Elizabeth Post

Dear Mrs. Post: When one member of a large family passes away, should the grieving family list the deceased's brothers and sisters in the newspaper?

Also, when giving his sermon, should the preacher or priest recognize the deceased's brothers and sisters as part of the family of the recently deceased?

When the brother of my father died, they never mentioned his name or his sister's, who passed away within the last three years. I would appreciate your answer since I'm sure other families have had the same problem.

They are not necessarily mentioned in the priest's sermon, even though he speaks of immediate family members.

Dear Mrs. Post: My husband and I are Orthodox Jews, and he, of course, must have his head covered at all times. He wears his yarmulke at home, but prefers a hat when he is in public. This makes him feel conspicuous in restaurants when other patrons remove their hats. Do you approve of his keeping his black fedora on, or would it be better for him to wear the yarmulke when he dines out?

Mrs. Cohen

Dear Mrs. Cohen: I do not sympathize with men who choose to wear a hat rather than their yarmulke. They should be proud of their faith, rather than conceal it, especially when doing so they commit a breach of everyday good manners. Your husband would never be open to criticism for wearing the yarmulke, but he certainly would be for keeping on a regular hat.

My booklet, "How to Plan and Budget your Wedding" is ideal for brides-to-be, their fiancés and parents in helping to prepare for the "perfect" wedding. To get a copy, send 50 cents in coins to cover booklet and mailing expenses to Elizabeth L. Post, in care of this newspaper.

The Salespeople Reply

emerge, whose writing on sales slips is illegible except for the amount of purchase.

The annoyed readers countercharge that some customers are simply more than human patience can bear.

They write of the "just looking" type obviously not really a buyer, but using up a saleswoman's time just the same.

They chide the customer who insists on trying on practically everything in sight, or tries to and finally decides she wants something which comes only in junior sizes "while she's a generous size 18."

Then there is the in-a-hurry shopper who on lunch hour or coffee break decides, for example that she wants a dozen pairs of stockings or other necessities, the clerk finds only half a dozen in stock, asks to be excused to check the stockroom, returns to find the customer gone. "It does take a little time to walk to and from the stockroom," wrote one annoyed clerk.

Lack of courtesy on the part of customers is another gripe. Clerk says, "May I help you?" and gets for reply a look of disdain or in some instances the observation, "I'd rather have a man help me."

Clerks after a while recognize the repeat customer who's rude, nagging and overbearing — and they learn to shy away from the "pain in the neck."

Readers write that customers should realize clerks are people too, that their duties are more than selling. They also take inventories and clean and straighten stock after customers "who seem to enjoy musing up shelves and racks."

"Sometimes I wonder," writes one, "how they keep their homes. Neat as a pin? Or looking like a disaster area?"

With the Christmas holiday shopping season coming on, the salespeople are for warning. As one said, "You can get so rushed there is no time to eat or anything. As for the Christmas spirit, it's practically non-existent in the majority of shoppers towards the clerks."

"Shoppers are worse at Christmas than at any other time of the year," said one.

Nancy Rider Is Bride of Lee Williams

MRS. LEE WILLIAMS
(Nancy Rider)

Nancy Rider, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Rider of Route 1, Kingston, became the bride of Lee Williams, son of Mr. and Mrs. Chester Williams of 13 Prince Street, Kingston, Friday, Oct. 11.

The Rev. Alvin Messersmith of Trinity Lutheran Church officiated at the candlelight service, assisted by the Rev. John W. Mongin of Reformed Church of the Comforter, Elizabeth Krouse, organist, accompanied Stephen Rider and Anita Aird, who sang wedding selections.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore her mother's gown of ivory satin styled with a fitted bodice trimmed with lace, long fitted sleeves and a long train. A seed pearl headpiece held her fingertip veil. She carried a Bible covered with two white orchids.

Mrs. Stephen Rider of Kingston was matron of honor in an autumn green gown styled with an ivory lace bodice. She wore a matching bouquet of fall flowers.

Attendants were Kim Kazowski, Joan Golnek, Betty Aird, cousin of the bridegroom, all of Kingston. Their gowns were identical in styling to the honor attendant's except in burgundy, purple and blue. They wore matching picture hats and carried fall bouquets.

David Rider, brother of the bride, Kingston, was best man. Ushers were Scott Aird, Stephen Rider, brother of the bride, both of Kingston; and Eugene DuPlessis, Saugerties.

A reception was given at the church hall. The bride, a 1973 graduate of Kingston High School, is employed by Hudson Valley Savings and Loan Association. Her husband, a 1969 alumnus of KHS, received his BS degree in Mathematics from State University College at New Paltz, and is employed by the Kingston Branch of the Post Office. The couple will reside in Kingston.

DAR GOOD CITIZEN AWARDS were presented early this month by members of Wiltwyck Chapter in Kingston. The candidates were elected by their classmates to receive the honors. The presentation program took place at the DAR Chapter House and Mrs. Warren A. Russell, regent, gave a welcoming address. Among those high school students honored were (L-R) Virginia Rogers, Rondout; Margaret Hogeboom, Wallkill; Mary Ann Ryan, Coleman; Jane Rosenstock, Ellenville; with Mrs. James P. Tobey, national DAR vice chairman. (Freeman photo by Haines)

Woodstock Garden Club Officers Elected; Special Awards Presented

Officers were elected at the 26th annual meeting of Woodstock Garden Club which took place October 16 in the meeting room of Woodstock Reformed Church. Heading the organization for 1975-76 are: Mrs. Henry S. Rade, Bearsview, president; Mrs. Arthur S. McCarthy, Woodstock, vice president; Mrs. Constance Weiss, Woodstock, recording secretary; Mrs. Otto E. Marquardt, Kingston, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Decker Bradshaw, Woodstock, treasurer.

The board of directors includes the elected officers and two immediate past presidents: Mrs. Clyde Deavers and Mrs. M. Leslie Denning, both of Woodstock.

A special feature of the afternoon was the presentation of the Village Beautification-Civic Awards.

Each year a "Certificate of Award" is given by the Club, on recommendation of the Civic Awards Committee of the Club, to the business or businesses of Woodstock where special effort has been made to improve the property for the intended beautification of the Village.

Judging is based on practicality of design, maintenance of planting, improvement of the appearance of Woodstock. Top Awards for 1974 were presented to Woodstock Meats, Mill Hill Road, and to Woodstock General Store, Tinker Street. On hand to receive these awards were Jerry Simonetti, owner, Woodstock Meats, and Mrs. Harry C. Pollack, proprietor, Woodstock General Store.

This year the Club has extended its awards to include an organization such as a church, museum, art gallery, historical building, or other type of cultural center. In this category, a "Special Citation" was designed and awarded to Woodstock Artists' Association for artistic excellence in the improvement of its gallery entrance and planting of the grounds surrounding the building. Mrs. Reginald Wilson, chairman of the Board of Trustees of WAA, and Maury Colow, vice chairman of the Board of Directors of the Association, were on hand to receive the Citation.

Honorable Mention, a Certificate of Recognition, was awarded to Woodstock Antiques, Ltd., and Colonial Pharmacy of Woodstock.

Citations for "Continued Improvement" in their property to the benefit of the appearance of Woodstock went to "Just Alan," Inter-County Savings Bank; Eric's Cheese Board; Arthur E. Hansen, Insurance; and the Bearsview Post Office. These certificates and citations were mailed to the recipients by the Club's Civic Awards committee.

Mrs. J. Albert Whittaker, membership chairman, reported four new members since the September meeting: Mrs. Charles Egan, Mrs. Haakon Hoel, Mrs. Magne Hoel; Mrs. Alexander Patterson. Mrs. Egan was presented with a new member corsage and current yearbook of the Club. The other three members were unable to attend the meeting.

Year end reports were given by each chairman of a standing committee and each chairman of a continuing and new activity. Mrs. Denning, retiring president, gave a review of the achievements and projects of the Club during 1973-74 and the many honors and awards received by the Club on both the State and District level of the Federated Garden Clubs of New York State, as well as on the national level from the National Council of State Garden Clubs for "outstanding support of the World Gardening" program. She received a standing ovation at the conclusion of her report.

The Club hospitality committee chairman, Mrs. Walter E. Roeckamp, was assisted by hostesses: Mrs. Michael Edwards, Mrs. Ernest Lindroth. The flower arrangement for the refreshment table was made by Mrs. Lindroth.

ALSO HONORED by the DAR for Dependability, Service, Leadership and Patriotism were Ann Casabura, Highland; Patricia Donohue, New Paltz; Sharon Phillips, Kingston; Brenda Hagedorn, OCS, Boiceville; pictured with Mrs. Harold E. Rippert, Wiltwyck Chapter committee member. A musical program was presented by Brian Steeves, director of music, Kingston High School, in honor of the occasion. (Freeman photo by Haines)

Final Performances Slated For Ron Radice's Comedies

Performing Arts of Woodstock, one of the few little theatre groups in the country which produces original plays and is receiving State Council on the Arts funds for its present hit show, is offering a rollicking evening in the theater by a local playwright. Ron Radice's comedies, "Bricks" and "The Interview," will run their third and final weekend this Friday, Saturday and Sunday at 8:30 p.m. at Woodstock Town Hall. Ticket information is available from Mrs. John LeFever in West Hurley or the PAW.

Mr. Radice is one of Woodstock area's busiest playwrights. "Shootout on Tinker Street," a film for which he wrote the script, had its world premiere in Woodstock the night after the premiere performances of "Brick" and "The Interview." His play, "The Pickpocket," produced by PAW, won the Best Short Play Award at the regional and state levels of the New York State Theater Festival. "The Pickpocket" went on to be produced by the New York Theater Ensemble.

Once again, PAW has chosen to present area audiences with a local playwright's work instead of mounting a Broadway retread.

Alphonse Apalategui is directing the show. A newcomer to the Woodstock area, he has directed extensively, started his own Summer Dinner Theater, and recently staged his own dramatization of Chaucer at a Church in Barrytown.

The cast includes John LeFever, an accomplished character actor and one of PAW's funniest comedians. With him are Larry Shufeldt, another PAW actor who has done a variety of leading roles. PAW shows. With them are teamed Gerry Guess, a talented newcomer to local boards who is taking an advanced degree in theater arts; Martin Henderson who was last seen with the PAW four years ago; and Sara Mulligan who is well known to little theater audiences from Hyde Park to Kingston.

"Bricks" will be sent to the Regional Competition of the New York State Theater Festival Association at Dutchess Community College on Sunday, Oct. 27 at 12:45 p.m. prior to returning to Woodstock for its final performance.

DEAR ABBY: Chuck and I have been married for 20 years. I was 17 and he was 18 at the time, and we were very much in love. I still am, but I'm not so sure about Chuck.

Recently Chuck expressed the need for less togetherness and more freedom to explore and develop ourselves as individuals. We talked it out and he admitted that his basic need was sexual experimentation. Chuck says he doesn't want to deceive me, but his need has now become an obsession.

We have three children and everything to stay together for. Chuck suggested one night out a week for both of us and no questions asked. I don't want another man, and I'm afraid if I agree to such an arrangement. Chuck might find someone else.

Please advise me.

CHUCK'S WIFE
DEAR ABBY: Chuck has suggested in highfalutin language that you both swing with others. To my way of something that I find very irritating, and I am amazed that somebody hasn't called her on it.

She addresses her patrons by their last names. "Johnston, I'll be with you in a moment. Smith, you're not dry yet. Jones, take the first dryer."

Perhaps most of her customers are either used to it, or they don't mind, but I find it rather rude.

Am I being petty? Or shouldn't a hairdresser address her patrons as either Miss or Mrs.?

CALL ME MRS.
DEAR CALL ME: A hairdresser (and anyone else who performs a personal service) should address clients as "Miss" or "Mrs." unless she is asked to address them in some other way. If it irritates you, tell her. No sense getting hotter under the dryer.

DEAR ABBY: I sure hope you can help me: I am 14, and already I am ruining my life. My problem is I am always lying to impress people, shock them, or just to get attention. I guess it so much, it's not the truth any more.

I have told some terrible lies that got a lot of people into a lot of trouble. Once I scratched my own face up, and told everyone that my mother did it, just to get people to feel sorry for me.

I don't take drugs or anything like that. I just lie and make up stories. I'm such a good liar I almost believe some of the things I make up. Please help me to stop lying, Abby. I don't have a friend in the world.

DON'T SIGN THIS
DEAR DON'T: Chronic lying is a symptom of a deeper emotional problem. You need professional counseling. If your school has a psychologist, ask to see him (or her). If none is available, ask your mother to arrange an appointment with someone at your local mental health clinic. The person who knows he has a problem and seeks help is well on the way to solving it. Good luck.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Paultz Turns Jumping Jack

By The Associated Press — Billy Paultz, an American Basketball Association All-Star the past two years, hadn't been worth a dime as a New York Nets rebounder in their first three games this season.

But he put a pair of 10-cent sponge lifts in his sneakers Wednesday night and jumped all over Nassau Coliseum, grabbing 17 rebounds in the Nets' 104-96 victory over the Memphis Sounds.

"The first couple of games I couldn't get off the ground," said Paultz, the 6-foot-11 center. "The Achilles were the problem. Both of them hurt me. The right one really gave me a lot of pain."

"The lifts shorten the stretch on your Achilles and the less you have to stretch, the less strain there is and the less pain."

Paultz went into the game with 6.6 rebound average for three games and left with something over 9.0. He also scored 20 points, although Julius Irving led with 33.

Billy Knight, a rookie forward who gets high on soft drinks, came off the bench and scored 21 points for Indiana, which beat St. Louis 122-107. Knight hit 9 for 9 from the floor and grabbed nine rebounds for the Pacers' first victory against two losses.

"Man, that guy is going to turn us all into Hi-C drinkers," said George McGinnis of Knight. "I'm going to give up beer. He just drinks that pop and shoots nine for nine."

McGinnis, however, led the scoring with 32 points.

Al Bianchi could have used a lift — of some kind — for his Virginia Squires. The Kentucky Colonels flattened them 136-82.

Published reports in New York said McGinnis and the Pacers would sign a new agreement Wednesday. McGinnis earlier this year signed a new contract with the Pacers of the American Basketball Association after being offered a deal by the New York Knicks of the National Basketball Association.

Weissert said that while the Pacers and McGinnis haven't agreed on a six-year contract, they're talking about one.

"George signed a two-year contract earlier this year," Weissert said. "We're now talking about a contract longer than two years. George has options to extend it."

"We're not sitting down this week and signing. If we can agree on some six-year thing, super."

Weissert chided the Knicks and the New York press for printing the reported signing, insinuating that the Knicks had "leaked" the story.

"The New York Knicks have come on pretty darn strong," Weissert said. "They've swept that city. They're supposed to be the premier franchise but they're second best in that city." The reference was to the fact the ABA has the New York Nets in that city.

OAKLAND (UPI) — The World Champion Oakland A's bolstered their batting muscle Wednesday with two major trades—obtaining "premier hitter" Billy Williams from the Chicago Cubs and first baseman Pat Bourque from the Minnesota Twins.

A's owner Charles O. Finley said Williams, 36, who has a lifetime batting average of .294, would be used primarily as a designated hitter.

To obtain Williams, who spent his entire 14-year career with the Cubs, the Oakland team sent two relief pitchers and 23-year-old Manny Trillo, a second baseman, to Chicago.

"We feel that he will be the finest designated hitter in the American League," Finley said. "He hits with authority and consistency as evidenced by his outstanding record."

The A's gave up pitchers Darold Knowles, 32, a southpaw who has pitched on three of Oakland's championship teams, and Bob Locker, a right-hander who sat on the bench in 1974 following an injury in pre-season training.

Knowles compiled a 3-3 record and a 4.22 ERA in 45 games in 1974, 44 of which were in relief. Locker spent 1972 with the Cubs and led the team in saves with 14 while collecting 10 wins.

The A's called Williams the "premier hitter of the National League." A Cubs spokesman said Williams had agreed to deal.

Twins, Oakland gave up two players from its Tucson Pacific Coast League farm club, provided the A's with a first baseman who could replace injured leg didn't heal properly.

The acquisition of Bourque, 24, disgruntled Gene Tenace, who was yanked twice during the A's World Series season with Los Angeles and vehementally announced that he wanted to be traded to get in 16 homers and batted .278.

When Williams started with Chicago in 1961, he hit .278 and 122 RBIs. Last year he had 333 and he had 37 homers and 122 RBIs.

NICE FIT — Apparently happy to be a Yankee, Bobby Bonds tries on his new pinstripes at Shea Stadium Wednesday. The right handed power hitter was traded to New York Tuesday by the San Francisco Giants for Bobby Murcer. (UPI)

Mrs. Bonds Had A Hectic Day

SAN CARLOS, Calif. (UPI) — Tuesday was one of the most hectic days in the life of Pat Bonds, but being the type of person who never gets flustered, she made all her scheduled appointments.

She even found time to fix a sumptuous Chinese dinner for her baseball player husband, Bobby Bonds, and some friends.

The day started with the jarring ring of the telephone at 7:45 in the morning—and it didn't stop ringing until late in the evening.

"I was still in bed when the first call came," she said Wednesday, recalling the day's events which saw Bobby traded by the San Francisco Giants to the New York Yankees for Bobby Murcer.

"It was Mr. Stoneham (Horace Stoneham, owner of the Giants)," she said. "He wanted to speak to Bobby, but I told him Bobby had gone fishing. That was all."

"I didn't make anything of the call."

Fifteen minutes later, Gabe Paul (president of the Yankees) called and I told him the same thing I told Mr. Stoneham."

When told that Bonds had left early in the morning for Antioch, Calif., 40 miles northeast of San Francisco, for a day of fishing, Paul asked if she could get in touch with him.

Sensing that something had to be said, Paul said, "I guess you know why I'm calling?"

Pat Bonds countered, "I have a pretty good idea."

That was only the beginning. Fisherman Bonds, accompanied by ex-Giant, ex-Yankee Jim Ray Hart and hip-delta the Sacramento Valley delta waters, had no way learning that he had a new employer so Pat put in a quick call to Bobby's brother, Dave, who lives in Pittsburg—near Antioch—and he acted as the courier.

The Bonds' three boys were in the kitchen fixing breakfast before going to school so they missed the conversations their mother had.

"I didn't tell them right away," Pat said. "But on the way to school, I asked them how they felt about moving."

Barry (10) immediately said he didn't care to go anywhere because he was playing Little League baseball (ironically, for the San Carlos Yankees).

"Ricky (9) said he didn't care and Bobby II (4½) didn't say a word. That's how they took it."

After driving the boys to school, she participated in her weekly bowling league and finished her grocery shopping.

"In between, all I did was answer the phone," she said. "I don't know how many times, but it was an awful lot. Finally, I just sat down next to the phone."

"What could I tell all the people who called? I just told them Bobby would be home later in the day."

"I let him answer all the calls when he got home. I was tired of doing it and, besides, I had to get dinner ready for the Bob Hoskinses (San Francisco 49er defensive tackle)."

For Pat's great work, Bobby presented her with two striped bass and three channel catfish.

Going to New York doesn't frighten Pat.

Clock Turns Back for LP Olympian

VIENNA (AP) — The clock turned back 42 years for Jack Shea, town supervisor of Lake Placid, N. Y., when the little skiing resort was awarded the 1980 Winter Olympics.

Shea was born in Lake Placid. In 1932, when he was 17, the Winter Olympics were held there and he won two gold medals in speed skating over 500 and 1,500 meters.

Now, at 60, he has helped Lake Placid to get the Winter Games again. The International Olympic Committee made the award Wednesday, at the same time it chose Moscow over Los Angeles for the 1980 Summer Games.

"I have waited a long time for this to happen," said Shea, a quiet spoken, grey-haired sports enthusiast whose family runs a meat and groceries business in Lake Placid.

"The Winter Game in my home town in 1932 were the highlight of my life. I have dreamed of seeing them take place at Lake Placid again."

"I have not been to any Winter Olympics since 1932, and I wonder just how different it will be. The Games were smaller in those days. One of our tasks will be to try to restore the simplicity and intimate friendships of the Olympics of days gone by."

Shea was one of a six-man team which appeared before the IOC and presented Lake Placid's bid. The task was made easier by the withdrawal of Vancouver, the only other applicant.

Shea's son Jim kept up the family tradition by competing in the Nordic combined events at the 1964 Winter Olympics at Innsbruck. He won no medals, but his father said: "He did well enough for me to be proud of him."

As soon as Lake Placid had won the 1980 games, its delegates were called to a meeting with officials of the United States Olympic Committee (USOC).

Philip Krumm, USOC President, and F. Donald Miller, Secretary General, told the Lake Placid team of the need to work closely together and avoid any hint of a repetition of the Denver incident.

Denver was awarded the 1976 Winter Games, but withdrew after a state referendum. Innsbruck took over the games at short notice.

That made a dent in the United States' Olympic reputation, and until Vancouver withdrew American officials were scared that it would hinder Lake Placid's cause.

"It can't happen in our case," said State Senator Ronald Stafford, a member of Lake Placid's presentation team. "We have all our facilities ready, and they have been approved by every winter sports federation."

Lake Placid told the IOC it would need to spend between 10 and 12 million dollars improving the facilities before the 1980 games.

Meanwhile, the disappointed Los Angeles delegation started thinking of a new bid for 1984. Los Angeles hosted the Summer Games in 1932 and has made three unsuccessful applications since World War II.

"The feeling of our delegation is that we should try again," said Mayor Tom Bradley. "I feel certain we will. We consider we are the best equipped sports city in the world."

The IOC did not reveal the voting figures, but an informed source said Moscow beat Los Angeles by 39 votes to 22 and the verdict on Lake Placid was unanimous.

The decision gave the Russians their biggest international prestige-boost since the revolution. It will be the first time the Olympics have been held in a Communist country.

Moscow, population 7.5 million, and Lake Placid, population 3,000, were throwing a joint celebration party Thursday night. The Los Angeles delegation was invited.

Donald D. Lorenzen, a jovial Los Angeles councilman who helped to present his city's bid, kept laughing and revived the spirits of his downcast colleagues.

"Let's all go and waltz beside the Danube," he said.

Montreal edged Toronto 3-2, Atlanta routed Detroit 10-1, Boston tied Pittsburgh 5-5, Lysia also set a Flame record by scoring five points on a goal and four assists.

In the WHA, it was Quebec 6 Michigan 2, New England 5 Houston 4 and Vancouver 4 Cleveland 1.

As Ranger Coach Emile Francis said, "it was the third straight game we've given up only one goal. That looks a lot nicer up there than a five."

Besides Fairbairn's three, Jerry Butler and Steve Vickers also scored for the Rangers, while Bill Collins spoiled Ed Giacomin's shutout with St. Louis.

Flames 10, Red Wings 1. Curt Bennett and Eric Vail each scored three-goal hat tricks for the Flames, who turned in the highest scoring output in their history. Tom Lysiak also set a Flame record by scoring five points on a goal and four assists.

Canadiens 3 Maple Leafs 2. Yvon Lambert scored his sixth goal of the young season at 17:27 of the final period after teammate Guy Lapointe had tied the score at 2-2 earlier in the period. The Leafs, who went ahead 2-1 on Bill Flett's goal at 6:24 of the final stanza, managed to kill off five consecutive penalties in the second period.

Bruins 5, Penguins 5. Carol Vadnais chipped in. Bobby Schmautz shot with 32 seconds remaining to earn a tie or the Bruins. On a night of hat tricks, however, it was Bobby Orr who joined Fairbairn, Bennett and Vail in the select group by also pinking home three for Boston.

Cliff Koroll scored on a third period power play to earn the victory for the Black Hawks and deny the Capitals of their second NHL win. The loss was doubly frustrating for the expansionists since they survived two missed Black Hawk penalty shots and also had led 2-0. Jim Pappin and Stan Mikita missed the two shots.

Seals 4, Scouts 4. Ron Huston's third period goal lifted the Golden Seals to a tie with Kansas City. The first-year Scouts looked like sure winners after getting back-to-back goals by Ed Gilbert and Simon Nolet only 24 seconds apart for a 4-1 lead but the Seals came back on Stan Weir's second goal of the night and Larry Patey's score to narrow the gap before Houston tied it.

Nordiques 4, Stags 2. Serge Bernier's two goals capped a four-goal third period outburst that snapped a 2-2 tie and gave the Nordiques the victory.

Whalers 5, Aeros 4. Ex-NHLer Fred O'Donnell tallied twice for the Whalers including the game-winner at 12:03 of the final period. Jim Sherri had given the Aeros a 4-3 lead at 8:16 of the third, but New England stormed back for two late scores by Tom Webster and O'Donnell to win it.

Crusaders Blazers. Johnny McKenzie scored with only 38 seconds gone and then added Vancouver's second goal late in the second period to lead the Blazers over Cleveland.

Bryan Campbell also starred for the Blazers with a goal and two assists.

"He says he wouldn't consider leaving Los Angeles for any other team but the Packers. He likes our ball club and he thinks he can play another three or four years."

Hadl, who had lost his starting job with the Rams this season to James Harris, said he had forgotten the National Football League was a business as well as a sport.

"It's just a business deal to get three draft choices in 1975 now. I won't play there unless I get the cash money I want. I'm obtain the 34-year-old signal either going to Green Bay or caller who was named the most home to San Diego, but not valuable player in the National back to the Rams," he said.

Big $ Tennis Match

NEW YORK (UPI) — It will signed the contracts Wednesday lack the ballyhoo of the King-Riggs affair, but pride and $100,000 will be on the line when Jimmy Connors and Rod Laver meet on a tennis court for the first time Feb. 2.

All the trimmings were reminiscent of a big-time fight signing when the principals fans, at Caesars Palace in Las Vegas on a surface still to be decided. It will be the best-of-five sets with the 12-point tie-breaker operating.

The King-Riggs match at the Astrodome in Houston last year drew the largest live audience in tennis. But it was a money-making gimmick and nothing more, and resulted in the "old man" getting his brains beaten out by the high priestess of Women's Lib.

This one will be different. It pits the current world's No. 1 against the man who ruled the roost for over a decade and who pioneered the "winner-take-all" match. Although there is a 14-year age difference between the two contestants, Laver, 36, is still the equal of anyone in a single match and he was not slow to stress the point.

Devine had said earlier Wednesday he was doing Hadl a special favor in allowing him to take some time to decide whether to report to Green Bay.

"John is a very old friend of mine and I wouldn't do this for anyone else. He's just asked me to go over this whole thing," Devine said. As Ranger Coach Emile Francis said, "it was the third straight game we've given up only one goal. That looks a lot nicer up there than a five."

UCCOC Wins Third Straight Soccer Title

Yet another jinx fell on the wayside Wednesday when the all-conquering Ulster County Community College soccer team played for the sixth time in its history on the Westchester CC campus and came away at last with a victory.

Then Senators stomped the Vikings with a 5-0 decision to break the spell the field had cast, and in the process they clinched their third consecutive Mid-Hudson Conference title.

Other good UCCOC teams had during which the teams felt played here and lost to lesser opponents, the most recent case being Ulster's elimination from last year's Region XV tournament by Queensborough, but this time the precedent was shattered. Two first half goals decided the issue quickly, then the Senators toyed with Westchester while running up the margin in the second half.

Winning coach George Vizvary described the early going as a relatively even exchange of each other out. Ulster's goal, John Bertuna, produced an inspired performance in the net to keep the Vikings scoreless while UCCOC geared its attack. Tom Mulroy, the former U.S. Junior Olympic team member, blasted his third successful penalty kick of the year to begin the scoring 35 minutes into the contest. That was all the spark Ulster needed, and the margin in the second half. Willie Navas proved it less than five minutes later with his eighth goal of the year.

"The second half was all Nedrick set up Mulroy who executed a hitch kick in mid-air and found the far corner of the net.

Ulster's balanced scoring continued with Tom Rontiris, second assist, and Rendon's second goal of the game at 32:05.

The win was UCCOC's eighth overall and sixth in MHC competition. It also marked the second straight year Ulster has cruised through the conference undefeated.

Vizvary singled out a few of the Senators: "It was the first time Bertuna really saved us, and Franklin Hill, who has been fantastic in the last few games, was as impenetrable. And (Mario) Oliva, even though he did not score, won the crowd over with his play."

Bertuna, forced to do a little more work than he has become accustomed to recently, recorded 10 saves and notched his fifth shutout of the season.

The return of Segundo Zapater was also a boost for the Senators. The big fullback was injured last week but did get to see some action against the Vikings. Vizvary said he would remain on limited duty through the Senators' upcoming test against Manhattan in Stone Ridge Saturday.

Ulster, now assured of a Region XV tournament berth, will travel to New York City Monday before returning home against Kingsborough and Bronx.

Randy Johnson Fires Four TD Passes

After grabbing three touchdowns during the World Football League scoring exercise, Randy Johnson threw for four touchdowns Wednesday night to lead the Hawaiians to a 60-17 victory in Chicago against the hapless Fire.

"I like playing wide receiver and catching the ball," said Isenbarger after the game. "The passes were right on target."

In the other WFL games Wednesday night, Florida beat Charlotte 15-11. Shreveport blanked Birmingham 31-0 and Philadelphia topped Southern California 45-7. Tonight, it's Memphis at Portland in the league's nationally televised contest.

A five year veteran who began the season with the National Football League's San Francisco 49ers, Isenbarger caught 10 passes for 135 yards, scoring on aerial plays of 28, 8 and 7 yards.

Johnson, a quarterback jumper from the NFL's New York Giants, completed 22 of 39 passes for 304 yards against Chicago before leaving the runway contest midway in the third quarter.

Coach Mike Giddings of the Hawaiians got revenge for an earlier 53-29 loss to Chicago by handing the Fire its eighth straight defeat.

Leading 46-10, the Hawaiians made an onside kick, recovered the ball and scored another touchdown just five plays later.

It was all downhill for the 20-203 Chicago spectators after a spectacular 52-yard field goal by Allan Watson gave the Fire a brief 10-8 edge against the Hawaiians in the opening period.

The Hawaiians and Fire are both 7-10 with three games remaining.

Blazers 15, Hornets 11

With Florida's Tommy Reamon rushing 35 times for a total of 189 yards, the Blazers triumphed on a pair of second-half scoring passes from Bob Davis to Greg Latta — 19 yards — and Jim Strong — eight yards.

The Blazers, 12-5, boosted their WFL Eastern Division lead over the runnerup Hornets, 10-7, before 23,613 spectators in Charlotte.

Steamer 31, Americans 6

Shreveport, 6-10-1, upset Birmingham 12-5, by gaining a total of 529 yards — 326 rushing and 203 passing — and keeping the ball for 20 minutes in the first half and another 20 in the second half.

Shreveport's Jim Nance, who scored on an eight-yard plunge for the first touchdown, rushed for 126 yards to join J.J. Jennings of Memphis and Reamon of Florida in the WFL's 1,000-yard club.

Bell 45, Sun 7

Quarterback King Corcoran fired three touchdown passes and scored on a one-yard dive to give Philadelphia, 7-10, an upset against Southern California, 12-5, already the WFL's Western Division champion.

Corcoran, who hit on 13 of 26 passes for 174 yards, threw scoring tosses of 32 yards to Don Shanklin, 25 yards to Ron Holliday and 10 yards to Claude Watts.

Philadelphia's John Land became the fourth WFL running back to gain more than 1,000 yards. He rushed for 84 yards in 18 carries for a total of 1,001 this season.

KHS and SHS Win

Kingston High School extended its winning streak to five and Saugerties made a rare visit to the victory circle Wednesday in DCSL soccer.

The Maroons broke a first half tie with a pair of second half goals and shook off Poughkeepsie, 3-1. Saugerties, meanwhile, had a laugh, blasting winless (and scoreless) Oakwood, 7-0.

David Farrell's long "freak goal" that carried over the head of Poughkeepsie goalie Dennis Primiano, snapped a 1-1 tie and gave KHS the lead for good. Farrell had taken a clearing pass from Mike Helmich and attempted to send it downfield, but instead he shanked it right in the cage.

Bill Brown's header of a Herb Kantor cross later in the second half was the insurance.

Emile Jordan started the Maroons off at 24:45 when he banged in the rebound of a Sean Schick shot. Kantor started the play.

Gudio Mariotta tied it at 26:47 on a penalty shot after a Kingston player was charged for a hand ball. Helmich shot the chance for a KHS penalty shot in the second half but his drive was stopped.

Once again Kingston got solid efforts from Farrell, Kantor, and junior David Mendez. Also playing a strong game in the Kingston cage was goalie Vince DeLuca.

Kingston is at Arlington Friday.

Saugerties got the three goal hat trick from John Spiers and a pair of scores from Rich Kulikowski. Bob Benzenhoffer had a goal and three assists. Sawyer Coach Tony Elia indicated that he used many of his lower classmen against the weak Oakwood team. Center back Dave Martin was particularly impressive for Saugerties. "I was more interested in the workout than the score," Elia said.

Elsewhere in the league Wednesday, first place Roosevelt downed Ketcham, 5-1; Arlington and Spackenkill played to a scoreless tie; and Rhinebeck turned back Webster, 2-0.

CHRISTINE SWANSON

Something New in Sports

SEATTLE (UPI) — Christine Swanson, sports editor of the University of Washington Daily, said Wednesday her planned invasion of the Husky locker room following Saturday's football game with Oregon would be "no big deal."

Chris, the first woman sports editor in the university newspaper's history, said Husky football players themselves had expressed no objection to the presence of a female in "what has been called the 'sacred' men's locker room."

She quoted safetyman Steve Lipe as saying, "I can't wait." Washington Coach Jim Owens told her, "you are part of the press corps and that's how I look at it. I realize that we might be losing a certain amount of privacy."

Owens indicated that there might be special arrangements made whereby the players newsmen want to interview after the game will be put in a separate room.

The layout of the men's locker room is such that the shower area is very close to the lockers themselves, Chris explained. "Too close, in fact, for the players to be able to put a towel on away from my prying eyes."

Financial and Commercial

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market fell sharply in early trading today, in a continuation of Wednesday's decline. The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was off more than 2 points shortly after the opening and losers led gainers by a wide margin on the New York Stock Exchange.

Brokers said investors were becoming increasingly worried about the direction of the economy. Late Wednesday, after the market's close, Paul McCracken, economic adviser to Treasury Secretary William E. Simon, said he believed the country was in a "sharp" recession and that unemployment might rise to around 7 per cent during the coming year.

Big Board stocks active in early trading today included Citicorp, off 1/4 at 28 1/4; Pan American, down 1/4 at 2 1/4; American Telephone, off 1/4 at 45 1/4; and Gulf Oil, which slipped 1/4 to 18 1/4.

U.S. Steel, strong lately because of the booming demand for its product, fell 1 to 38. Some reports said the downturn in durable goods orders may affect over-all capital spending.

Wilson Unveils Anti-Crime Program

NEW YORK (AP) — Gov. Manhattan, Wilson presented Malcolm Wilson has unveiled a six proposals: "get-tough" anti-crime program that he says would enable the state to end the current "revolving door of justice" that quickly recycles criminals back onto the streets.

Addressing a rally of 200 police and firemen gathered Wednesday before an adjourned firehouse and police station in Manhattan, Wilson presented six proposals: "get-tough" anti-crime program that he says would enable the state to end the current "revolving door of justice" that quickly recycles criminals back onto the streets.

—Allow courts to deal "more effectively" with juveniles by giving the criminal courts the option of criminally prosecuting youthful offenders who now are referred automatically to Family Court.

—Require district attorneys to recommend a sentence in each case.

—Allow the trial judge a greater role in jury selection to speed up criminal trials.

—Effect speedy, efficient handling of the most dangerous offenders by establishing major offense bureaus in the offices of urban-area district attorneys.

—Step up action to prosecute bail jumpers.

The Republican governor was flanked by Ken McFeeley, president of the Patrolmen's Benevolent Association, and Richard J. Vizzini, president of the Uniformed Firefighters Association. Both unions endorsed Wilson's campaign.

Wilson also said he was delighted that Lake Placid was awarded the 1980 Winter Olympic Games.

Tremendous credit must be given to the Lake Placid Olympic Committee, which has worked tirelessly for many months," he said.

Meanwhile, during a campaign swing through Long Island, Democratic notinee Hugh L. Carey stopped in front of the Kollsman Instrument Co. At Wilson's urging early this year, the state legislature doubled the investment tax credit from one to two per cent. Several days ago Wilson suggested a second increase, to four per cent, that would apply to businesses with annual net profits ranging up to $100,000.

"Wilson said it was irresponsible of me to want to hold taxes down for low-income groups," he said. "Now he wants to quadruple a business tax credit in the space of a year."

Village Study Is Planned

ELLENVILLE presently had a duplication of the services and personnel with the Town of Wawarsing, and a heavy tax burden to pay for Modris Pukulis look into it. Mrs. Finkelstein said.

The Ellenville Village Board agreed to have Village Manager Alex Diachishin study the ramifications of incorporating the village, at this week's regular board meeting, completed by Nov. 29, and the bridge, after many months, reopened.

The proposal was raised by Trustee Sol Sandler, who said he was not now advocating the disincorporation but did want to be informed about it, according to Village Clerk Lillian Finkelstein.

It is believed that federal funds may be available for the conduct of such a study, and that is what Pukulis is to look into, Sandler said the village responsible for paying for school crossing guards. The district has requested additional guards in the village.

Ellenville will celebrate Veteran's Day Nov. 11.

A public hearing on a local law dealing with the impounding of vehicles was scheduled for Nov. 4 at 8 p.m. in the Village Hall, in conjunction with that night's regular board meeting.

Buffalo Man Held in Girl's Death

BUFFALO, N. Y. (UPI) — A Buffalo man was being held today after he was arrested by FBI agents on a charge stemming from the death of a 15-year-old girl whose nude body was found in the bathtub at a room in a suburban motel Monday night.

U.S. Magistrate Edmund F. Maxwell ordered Charles E. White, 33, held in lieu of $25,000 bail on an obstruction of justice charge in connection with the death of Annette Petty, 15, of Buffalo to prevent her from testifying in a federal investigation of interstate prostitution.

U.S. Attorney John T. Elfvin said any further charges would be lodged by police in the town of Tonawanda, where the girl's body was found.

"Obviously, she was killed and that killing is what prevented her from testifying," Elfvin said.

White was arrested Oct. 4 on a federal indictment charging him with taking two teen-aged girls from Buffalo to Erie, Pa., in 1973 for purposes of promoting prostitution. He had been free on $5,000 bail.

The girl's body was found when the owner of the Rip Van Winkle Motel looked into the room after hearing a television set playing loudly. Police said Miss Petty apparently checked into the motel with a man using a phony name and address.

4 Arrested On Possession

ELLENVILLE Four persons were charged with seventh degree possession of a controlled substance (marijuana) early today by Ellenville State Police during a routine traffic check.

Arrested on the misdemeanor charge were Laurie Jan. 22, of Plainview, Thomas Reigot, 18, of Huntington, L.I., and Keogh Serynek, 18, of Huntington.

The Malech woman, the driver of the car in which the four were riding, was also charged with driving while intoxicated.

Taken before Wawarsing Town Justice Harold Sashin, the four were released in their own recognizance pending further court proceedings.

Woman Nabbed On Arson Charge

ELLENVILLE Ellenville Village Police have charged a 61-year-old woman with arson in connection with a fire at a neighbor's garage, and are questioning the woman concerning three other fires including one which destroyed a garage at her own address.

Charged with third degree arson was Mrs. Minnie Goldberg, of 19 Lincoln Street. Police said the arrest was made in connection with an Oct. 12 blaze in a garage at 15 Lincoln Street.

Detectives said Mrs. Goldberg is being questioned concerning three other recent Lincoln Street fires, including one in a garage at 19 Lincoln Street, another which gutted a house, and a third which damaged a storage shed.

Following arraignment, Mrs. Goldberg was confined in Ulster County Jail in lieu of $5,000 bail to await a reappearance in court Oct. 29.

Student Is Hospitalized

NEW PALTZ A 25-year-old student at the State University College at New Paltz was admitted to Vassar Hospital in Poughkeepsie early today after suffering an apparent drug overdose, state police said.

Andre Sanchez, whose home address was not immediately determined, was listed in critical condition in the intensive care unit at the hospital following admission.

Police said the man reportedly staggered into a dormitory room during the early morning hours, asked for help, and collapsed on the floor.

He was taken to Vassar Brothers Hospital by the New Paltz Rescue Squad.

Investigation is continuing.

Trooper Killed On Thruway

CANASTOTA, N.Y. (UPI) — A New York State trooper, the father of six, was killed today following a shooting on the New York State Thruway near this Madison County community, apparently while trying to arrest two robbery suspects.

A state police spokesman in Albany identified the trooper as Emerson J. Dillon, 38, of Phoenix, who joined the force in May, 1958.

A hospital official in Oneida said the trooper died at the hospital. The spokesman said Dillon was shot twice.

The car reportedly then was driven across the highway's divider and through a wooden roadblock set up to close an exit at Canastota.

The state police spokesman said the suspect or suspects held up a woman in Canastota and stole her car.

Dillon reportedly was trying to arrest two suspects in a jewelry store holdup in DeWitt.

Paltz Board
Awards Bids

NEW PALTZ
The New Paltz Village Board, in a relatively short and quiet meeting this week, awarded bids for rock salt and fuel oil, and agreed to have emergency repairs done to the roof of the village garage.

The bids were awarded to A. P. Leffevre for fuel oil, and to the Cargill Salt Co. for rock salt.

The board approved an expenditure of $2,400 for the emergency roof work, with it to be done by Ulster Roofing of Kingston.

Village Attorney J. Philip Zand announced that Local Law No. 5, dealing with the stop and caution signs on Fulton Road and John Streets, had been filed with the Secretary of State and was now in effect.

A notice of claim for personal injury was received from Irwin Sperber, who alleged that he was injured in a fall on a village sidewalk, and the claim was turned over to the insurance company.

The rate of compensation for part-time patrolmen was raised from $3 per hour to $3.50.

Ford Continues '74 Blitz

WASHINGTON (UPI) — With elections 12 days away, President Ford offered to help more of his party's hard-pressed candidates today with a personal campaign swing through the Midwest.

He hoped to harvest some votes from farmers angered by government grain and beef policies.

Ford scheduled appearances in Des Moines, Iowa, Melvin, Ill., and Chicago, continuing an intensive, personal bid to restrict Democratic gains in the House and Senate.

In Des Moines, Ford's first stop, GOP officials were expecting more than 5,000 persons to turn out for a Ford speech on the steps of the capitol building and 1,200 supporters to pay $50 apiece for a fund raising luncheon.

Ford made a similar trip Tuesday to Oklahoma and Ohio, acknowledging that many GOP candidates appeared to be fighting uphill battles. Polls indicated much the same for Iowa and Illinois GOP candidates.

Iowa's Republican governor, Robert Ray, seems assured of winning his fourth term on Nov. 5. But State Sen. David Stanley is trailing Rep. John Culver, D-Iowa, in their battle to succeed retiring Democratic Sen. Harold E. Hughes.

In House races, Democrats are favored to hold their current three seats while picking up one or maybe two of the three now in GOP hands.

The Illinois picture is no better. Sen. Adlai E. Stevenson III is considered a sure winner over Republican challenger George Burditt, a suburban Chicago lawyer.

Democrats seem likely to increase their control over the state's 26-member House delegation by seizing at least 3 of 12 Republican seats.

Republican prospects in Farm Belt states have slipped along with declining livestock prices, and they appeared to drop more early this month.

When Ford persuaded two firms to cancel $500 million of wheat and corn contracts with the Soviet Union.

Farmers as well as cattlemen blame White House economic policies for the current cost-price squeeze that has put many of them in financial straits.

Since starting his present campaign blitz two weeks ago, Ford has been to 11 states. He plans a final campaign sweep next week to Michigan, Colorado, Kansas, California, Utah and Oregon.

All the time, the President appealed for support of his party's candidates with a warning that major Republican losses might enable the Democrats to achieve a "legislative dictatorship" in Congress.

If that were to happen, he has said the public could expect a resurgence of government spending rather than tough budget-cutting action to combat inflation.

On Tuesday, Ford expanded his attack by saying a big new influx of Democrats in Congress could further reduce cooperation on foreign policy between the White House and Capitol Hill and even jeopardize world peace.

From Des Moines, Ford planned to fly to Melvin in an effort to see that Republicans hang on to the seat held for 20 years by Rep. Les Arends, a retiring as the assistant House GOP leader and one of the President's closest friends.

Democrat Tim Hall, a school teacher who was defeated by Arends in 1972, is running against Clifford Carlson, a wealthy industrialist who had to edge out four other candidates in a GOP primary that has left the party fragmented.

Ford arranged to speak at the Melvin Fairgrounds before traveling to Chicago in early evening to address a $250 per plate fund raising dinner expected to draw between 500 and 1,000 guests.

New Prosecutor... Same Independence

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Henry S. Ruth, a soft-spoken, 43-year-old government lawyer, has been named special Watergate prosecutor with the same promises of independence his two predecessors had.

Ruth has been No. 2 man in the special prosecution force since it was set up in May, 1973. He survived the firing of the first prosecutor, Archibald Cox, in the "Saturday Night Massacre" the following October.

When Cox's successor, Leon Jaworski, submitted his resignation last Oct. 12, he recommended that Ruth replace him.

Attorney General William B. Saxbe announced Ruth's appointment Wednesday and pledged he will have the same independence as Jaworski.

Ruth said he had talked with both Saxbe and White House attorney Philip Buchen and "they assured me of the same kind of independence that Mr. Jaworski had."

He added: "The operation will go on exactly the same. We have a lot of work to do and I'd like to get back to it."

Though no congressional approval of the appointment is required, the Justice Department said Saxbe consulted Democratic and Republican leaders in the House and Senate and on the two judiciary committees, and "all approved Ruth's appointment."

Saxbe said: "I agree with Mr. Jaworski's conclusion that Mr. Ruth would be the best choice to complete the remaining work of the office. I have discussed this subject with the President and he fully supports this appointment."

Ruth is credited with holding the prosecution team together during its most trying time. He was driving in his car the night of Oct. 20, 1973, when he heard on the radio that Nixon had fired Cox for trying to obtain the Watergate tapes.

He sped to the office wearing a sports shirt, called the staff together with the comment that it was "no Seven Days in May but one night in October," and led the group during the 10 days of uncertainty until Jaworski was appointed Nov. 1.

With assurances of independence patterned after those that existed on paper for Cox.

Ruth is a native of Philadelphia, a cum laude graduate of Yale and got his law degree at the University of Pennsylvania. He served in the Army, practiced law in Philadelphia and came to Washington during the Kennedy administration.

He served in the Office of Criminal Justice, was assistant director of the National Crime Commission, taught criminal law at the University of Pennsylvania from 1967 to 1969 and then became head of the Justice Department's National Institute of Law Enforcement and Criminal Justice.

Happy Out of Hospital

Mrs. Rockefeller, accompanied by her husband, Nelson A. Rockefeller, smiled and waved her left arm above her head as she left the hospital. "I feel great," she said.

Rockefeller, more accustomed to interviews and the press of cameras and bright lights than his wife, did most of the talking, however.

"All I can say is that there are two very grateful people here," the vice president designate said.

He said he also was "very grateful to Betty Ford for her example to all of us."

President Ford's wife underwent similar surgery for removal of her right breast several weeks before Mrs. Rockefeller's operation.

The vice-president designate also praised the "self examination and courage" that Mrs. Ford's operation had symbolized for women around the world.

Mrs. Rockefeller, 48, underwent surgery for removal of

The operation, described by room and board doctors as "a modified radical mastectomy," began at 8:30 a.m. and ended about 4 hours later.

After surgery, attending physician Dr. Jerome A. Urban, acting chief of breast services at Sloan-Kettering, described Mrs. Rockefeller's condition as excellent and said he did not feel the cancer had spread to the lymph nodes.

"I think I got all of it," he really do," Urban said at the age.

Laboratory tests on the 32 lymph nodes removed from Mrs. Rockefeller's chest and armpit confirmed Urban's diagnosis.

The day after the operation, when Mrs. Rockefeller refused pain killers and was already raising her left arm above her head, Urban said, "she's practically recuperated all ready."

Mrs. Rockefeller was visited for about an hour for lunch Wednesday by her husband, who has spent part of every day at her bedside at the hospital since her cancerous left breast was removed.

Surgeons and staff gathered

Her self check-up was prompted by widespread concern over breast cancer following similar surgery on President Ford's wife, Betty, last month.

The surgery on Mrs. Rockefeller was described as a radical limited mastectomy. Doctors said the cancer had not spread to the lymph nodes and have given Mrs. Rockefeller a 90 per cent chance of cancer-free survival for at least 10 years as a result of the operation.

MOSCOW (UPI) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger met with Soviet Communist leader Leonid I. Brezhnev today, carrying a package of proposals for slowing the nuclear arms race.

It was Kissinger's first meeting with Brezhnev since President Ford came to power Aug. 9. U.S. officials said the secretary was expected to finalize plans for Brezhnev-Ford summit talk next month.

Soviet diplomats in Washington have said Russia is uncertain of the Ford administration's desire to pursue the policy of détente set up by former President Richard M. Nixon.

Just before the talks began, Soviet officials barred U.S. newsmen accompanying Kissinger from attending the opening of the meeting.

The officials gave no reason but many observers said the action was apparently a retaliation for the reporters' protest Wednesday against a Soviet decision to bar a Time magazine correspondent from the country.

Kissinger's three-day visit to Moscow comes at a time of increasing congressional attacks against Soviet-American détente.

A senior official traveling with Kissinger said the secretary is anxious to review the state of U.S.-Soviet relations in an attempt to determine the détente.

U.S. officials said Washington and Moscow are both interested in improving relations, but seem uncertain about the next steps.

The officials said the Soviet Union apparently wants to size up Ford to see how solidly his administration backs the détente policy promoted by Nixon.

A major focus of the Kissinger-Brezhnev talks is expected to be the search for guidelines at the new round of strategic arms limitation talks opened in Geneva Sept. 18.

U.S. officials said Kissinger is planning to offer a variety of nuclear warheads, controlling the size of strategic bomber forces and easing the race to modernize missile technology.

The senior U.S. official said there is a good chance of arranging a Ford-Brezhnev summit unless unexpected snags develop.

Soviet newsmen, speaking privately, said Moscow is energetically seeking a Nov. 24 summit in the Pacific port city of Vladivostok. They said the port is already being readied for the encounter.

Kissinger's trip began on a note, however, when the translator of the late Soviet leader Nikita S. Khrushchev's memoirs, The Kremlin denounced "Khrushchev Remembers" in 1970 when the first volume appeared, but let Talbot visit Moscow two years later.

Fourteen U.S. correspondents with Kissinger signed a protest statement calling the denial "a step backward" in the search for improved U.S.-Soviet relations.

Rocky's Family Satisfied, But Not Barry Goldwater

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Vice presidential nominee Nelson Rockefeller says that contrary to some news accounts his family "couldn't be more happy" about disclosures of his wealth.

But Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., the man who beat the former New York governor for the Republican presidential nomination 10 years ago, is questioning Rockefeller's financial power, and says he is backing away from his original commitment to vote for confirmation.

Rockefeller spent part of Wednesday with his wife, Happy, who was released from a New York hospital one week after undergoing surgery for breast cancer.

On his way back to Washington, Rockefeller told reporters that accounts of his family being disturbed about detailed disclosures of his and their wealth were inaccurate.

"Somebody started that story and it's not true," he said. "They are very understanding. They couldn't be more happy. They are a great group."

Rockefeller's nomination troubles, however, became more complicated Wednesday night, when Goldwater, speaking at Arizona State University, said he has told President Ford he no longer feels bound by his initial support of the nomination and has questions about the way Rockefeller used his wealth.
